Astronauts Spinning Smoothly Up In Space

DeGaulle Given Rebuff

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle maintained silence today after French voters handed a stinging rebuff to his bid for first-round victory in the presidential election.

With a record turnout of 84.9 per cent of the voters, De Gaulle polled only 43.96 per cent of the vote in the first round of voting Sunday. This forced him into a run-off Dec. 19 with left-winger Francois Mitterrand, the No. 2 man in the six-man race.

Some Gaullist officials had predicted before the election that if De Gaulle did not get the massive endorsement he wanted, he would refuse to run in the second round. Other officials differed.

"The general is a fighter," said one supporter, "and he will not abandon the combat now."

A second-round victory was considered in the bag for De Gaulle if he runs. Although his image was bruised by the outcome Sunday, it is not likely that he will change his attitudes and ways.

In department after department where he had shown strength in other electroal tests, De Gaulle polled less than 50 per cent of the votes.

His pride must have suffered additionally from the knowledge that election of the president by direct vote was the result of a constitutional change he had inaugurated.

Only once before, in 1848, did French voters have a direct say about who would be elected president.

These were the results from nearly 24 million valid ballots in metropolitan France:

Charles de Gaulle 10,504,007 for 43.96 per cent.

Francois Mitterrand 7,655,042 for 32.04 per cent.

Jean Lecanuet 3,770,771 for 15.78 per cent.

Jean-Louis Tixier - Viganancour 1,269,095 for 5.31 per cent.

Pierre Marchilhancy 414,056 for 1.73 per cent.

Marcel Barbu 278,420 for 1.16 per cent.

Still to be recorded were returns from about 446,000 voters in overseas territories.

Prices Of Stocks Plunge

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices plunged early today following the Federal Reserve Board's increase of the discount rate. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slumped 14.98 points to 931.12 in the first half hour of trading.

Trading became heavy after a sluggish opening.

Big blocks of stock crossed the New York Stock Exchange ticker tape. Most of them were blue chips showing losses.

Some stocks were down as much as $2 a share from Friday's close.

The Board increased interest rates to their highest level in 35 years, overriding Johnson administration economic policy and drawing immediate presidential disapproval.

The board said that higher rates will help prevent inflation and aid in overcoming the persistent U.S. balance-of-payments deficit.

It ordered:

— An increase in the discount rate from 4 to 4.5 per cent, its highest level since 1930. This is the interest the 12 regional Federal Reserve banks charge on loans made to member commercial banks. Any upward movement generally spreads throughout the entire credit structure — applying to consumers who buy houses, cars and other goods on the installment plan.

— An increase in the maximum interest banks may pay on specified time deposits of more than 30 days from 4.5 to 5.5 per cent, its highest level ever. This might tend to attract money from other areas — the stock market, savings and loan associations, for example — into the banks.

The board left unchanged the 4 per cent interest ceiling on regular savings accounts.

The administration is powerless to alter the actions. Although board members are appointed by the President, they compose an independent agency, subordinate to no one.

In Johnson City, Tex., President Johnson said: "I regret, as do most Americans, any action that raises the cost of credit, particularly for homes, schools, hospitals and factories."

The first reaction in banking circles generally was favorable, although some expressed surprise over the time savings deposit interest raise.

Mishap Injuries Kill Young Man

John H. Wilson, 34, Portageville, died Thursday as a result of injuries suffered Nov. 18, when his truck overturned on a curve on route D, two miles east of Lilbourn.

He was driving a 1963 Ford pickup truck and was alone. He was thrown out of the vehicle.

He died in Pemiscot County Memorial hospital in Hayit where he was taken with scalp wounds.

Three area highway accidents produced 11 injuries Saturday and Sunday with one accident accounting for six of them.

Fast driving around a rural highway curve in Cape Girardeau county caused six young men and women to be hospitalized, some seriously, when a 1957 Chevrolet, driven by Ralph Hartley, 20, Millersville, overturned on rural route KK, four miles west of Old Appleton, Sunday.

Hartley is believed to have suffered a broken back in the mishap. Five other passengers injured less seriously were Janet Stroud, 16, Oak Ridge, with a chest injury; Frances Poe, 20, neck injury; Johnny Newell, 16, Oak Ridge, back and internal injuries and broken collarbone; Leslie Newell, 20, Oak Ridge, cuts and bruises; Marty Aldrich, 18, Jackson, cuts and bruises. All were taken to the Southeast Missouri hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Two persons were seriously injured on route U, three and one-half miles west of Caruthersville, Saturday morning. Virginia Brown, 45, Caruthersville, driver of a Chevrolet, started to pass another car, ran off the highway to avoid a collision and overturned. She received a head injury and was transferred to a Memphis hospital.

Jimmy Ward, 5, Caruthersville, a passenger, received a serious head wound and was taken to the Hayti hospital.

Three persons were injured Sunday at 1:40 a.m. on highway 84, one mile west of Caruthersville.

A 1965 Falcon, driven by Arthur Brogdon, 33, Hayti, ran into the rear of a 1956 Chevrolet, driven by Charles Kirby, 26, Bragg City.

Kirby received cuts on his head. Two passengers in his car, James Kirby, 34, Bragg City, received a head injury, and Auge Condel, 39, Bragg City, received a neck injury. The three were taken to the Hayti hospital.

Pad Crews Ahead Of Schedule

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — Astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell Jr. sped smoothly around the world today and preparations moved ahead at a fast rate for the attempt by two manned Gemini spacecraft to carry out the world's first rendezvous in space.

Paul Haney, the voice of Mission Control at Houston, reported pad crews were running 14 to 16 hours ahead of schedule in the race to launch astronauts Walter Schirra Jr. and Thomas P. Stafford in the Gemini 6 spaceship from Cape Kennedy, Fla.

The launch is scheduled for Dec. 13, in the ninth day of the scheduled Gemini 7 endurance mission, but Haney said Flight Director Chris C. Kraft was "looking into that eighth day possibility."

At Cape Kennedy, however, a space agency spokesman said the crew was that far ahead in only one phase of the operation — the electrical mating of the spacecraft to the Titan 2 booster rocket.

A spokesman for the Martin Co., prime rocket contractor, said the booster phase of the preparations was only about four hours ahead. He added that the possibility of a Dec. 12 launch was rather slim.

The Gemini 6 spacecraft will fly at 17,500 miles an hour in pursuit of the Gemini 7. Pilots of the two ships will attempt to rendezvous in the skies and score a spectacular space first by flying in formation several hours.

Gemini 7 began its 28th orbit at 9:40 a.m. (EST).

As Borman and Lovell awoke from a sound sleep, Russia was attempting to stage its own spectacular.

A Soviet space capsule hurtled through space toward the moon and a possible soft landing in the Ocean of Storms about 4:50 p.m. (EST). If the mission succeeds, the instrument package could radio back valuable information on the lunar surface, data essential to a manned landing.

Haney reported the tracking station at Carnarvon, Australia, had to call the Gemini 7 several times before the astronauts awakened, but that Lovell responded with a cheery "good morning to you!"

A short time later, Navy Cmdr. Lovell was given permission to perform the first "space striptease" by taking off his space suit whenever he desired.

Infantrymen Stand Off Viet Cong

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Caught in murderous machine-gun crossfire from a Communist regiment, U.S. infantrymen stood off wave after wave of attacks with help from the sky by U.S. Air Force and Navy jets.

The battle 40 miles northwest of Saigon raged Sunday near the bloodied rubber plantation where U.S. and South Vietnamese troops have been hunting the Communists for days following the near destruction of the Vietnamese army 7th Regiment Nov. 27.

Sporadic firing continued today. The Communists repeatedly probed another U.S. battalion in the area during the night.

The Viet Cong warned of "punishing new blows" against Saigon, similar to the terrorist attack on a U.S. enlisted men's billet Saturday. Eight persons were killed, including one American.

Along the coast 260 miles northeast of Saigon, a U.S. Marine amphibious force swept across a Communist stronghold after storming ashore Sunday and killing 14 Viet Cong. Eleven others were reported killed by fire from 7th Fleet destroyers and attack planes.

The Viet Cong were reported to have lost as many as 200 dead in a battle Saturday between South Vietnamese forces and the Communists for control of a three-hamlet complex near Quang Ngai City, 320 miles northeast of Saigon.

Vatican Council Votes Its Approval Of Last Schema

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican Ecumenical Council gave a decisive vote of approval today to its final schema, on modern world problems.

Pope Paul VI promptly accepted the document although an unusually large number of prelates voted against its blanket condemnation of nuclear warfare.

The fiercely contested schema emerged from the voting with the largest bloc of opposition votes of any of the council's decrees — 251. Council spokesmen said 2,111 prelates voted for it.

Spokesmen said the chapter on war and peace containing the condemnation of nuclear warfare had been opposed by 483 council fathers in earlier section-by-section voting. The chapter got 1,710 favorable votes, well above the required two-thirds majority but relatively low as council votes have gone.

Many American prelates opposed the ban-the-bomb tone in the section.

Council spokesmen said another key section of the document, urging further birth control studies and suggesting Roman Catholicism's ban on contraception may not be final, was approved by a vote of 2,047-155 in the section-by-section vote.

The vote in St. Peter's Basilica completed the work of the three-year-old council. The schema and three others will be proclaimed at a public session in St. Peter's Basilica Tuesday and the council will come to a ceremonial end Wednesday.

Pope Paul VI proclaimed a five-month special jubilee for the world's 500 million Roman Catholics to promote the council's decisions. He outlined a program of celebration "in every diocese of the Catholic world from Jan. 1 to May 29 (Pentecost Sunday)."

A jubilee is a period of indulgence, or remission of temporal punishment due for sin. During the jubilee indulgences are granted to persons taking part in the special services.

At Tuesday's public session, Pope Paul also will issue the council decrees on religious liberty, the priestly life and missionary activity.

The section on war and peace deplores the arms race and mentions stockpiling of nuclear arms as a danger to the world.

President Told Blackout In East Didn't Have To Happen

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson was told today the massive Northeast power blackout didn't have to happen — yet could happen again. Experts urged new precautions and perhaps new legislation.

Johnson got a 95-page printed report on preliminary findings by the Federal Power Commission in a Johnson-ordered investigation of the Nov. 9 power failure that affected 30 million people in the United States and Canada.

To discuss the report, the President summoned retiring FPC Chairman Joseph C. Swidler to the LBJ Ranch near here.

According to the report, the chain reaction that plunged 80,000 square miles into darkness could have been avoided had employes at Canada's Sir Adam Beck hydroelectric plant on the Niagara River reset an electric relay to handle power loads that had increased significantly since the device was last set in 1963.

Allegations of man-failure were not limited, however, to the Beck plant. The report also said:

—Employes of the Consolidated Edison Co. perhaps could have prevented the blackout from enveloping all of New York City had they acted quickly to shut down parts of their system at the first warning of trouble.

—The complete collapse of the interconnected power system in the Northeast might have been avoided had employes of many individual utility firms taken similar action.

—The chief operating engineer of Consolidated Edison told the FPC that, with benefit of hindsight, power might have been restored in New York City twice or even four times faster. The blackout there lasted from 8 to 13 hours, depending on the section of the city.

"There is no evidence whatever that sabotage was involved in any stage of the power failure," the FPC concluded. It said the impact of the blackout on military and civil defense installations "appears to have been negligible" because most had emerged power supplies.

Johnson said in a statement: "Many of the commission's initial recommendations are already being implemented by the power companies. This effort must be continued until we have so perfected our power systems that widespread power failures will be not only improbable but impossible."

In its report the FPC said flatly that "there can be no absolute assurance that outages (power failures) of the Nov. 9 magnitude will not recur." However, it said the possibility of a recurrence was remote and that steps could be taken to cut the odds.

Holy Office Revised

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI today ordered a broad revision of the Vatican's Holy Office, successor of the Inquisition. He changed its status and name, ended some of its secrecy and said persons brought before it must have the right of defense.

He reaffirmed its jurisdiction in safeguarding Roman Catholic doctrine, but put down rules that would make it more open to new opinion.

Pilot Sacrifices His Life To Save His Passengers

NORTH SALEM, N.Y. (AP) -Eastern Airlines pilot Charles J. White apparently sacrificed his life while helping to evacuate passengers after crash-landing his propeller-driven plane following a collision Saturday with a Trans World Airlines jet.

Three other persons lost their lives and 50 were injured. The two planes carried 112 persons.

Survivors and investigators alike praised the flying skill of White and of the TWA pilot, Capt. Thomas H. Carroll, who guided his craft — minus a 30-foot section of wing — to a safe landing at Kennedy International Airport.

Federal investigators are probing the cause of the crash.

The body of Capt. White, 42, a World War II bomber pilot, was found Sunday midway down the smashed and charred cabin of his four-engine Constellation.

Standing beside the wreckage, Oscar Bakke, regional director of the Federal Aviation Agency, said: "All I can say is it is fantastic that people walked away. The pilot must have done a wonderful job."

The planes collided about two miles above northeastern Westchester County, flying at a combined speed of perhaps 1,000 miles an hour. White was piloting his ship on a shuttle run from Boston to Newark, N.J. The TWA jet was en route nonstop to New York from San Francisco.

The investigation of the collision centered on establishing the altitude of the two planes.

The Eastern plane, carrying 54 persons, was assigned to a flight course of 10,000 feet, and the TWA jet to 11,000 feet.

Thirty-two persons remained hospitalized today, four of them in critical condition.

The only person injured aboard the TWA plane, carrying 58 persons was a stewardess who suffered a bloodied nose when she was slammed to the floor.

The dead are listed as Capt. White, of Rye, N.H., Dr. Joseph M. Wilkinson Jr. of Summit, N. J., a passenger, dead on arrival at Northern Westchester Hospital; Mrs. Donald Thibodeau, of Gloucester, Mass., died Sunday in Danbury Hospital; and Pvt. Dennis Flucker of Hoboken, N.J., whose body was found in the wreckage of the plane.

QUESTIONS THAT STIRRED A STORM

Two types of tests that have been given to school pupils under the auspices of the U. S. Office of Education recently have brought widespread protests from parents and from members of Congress.

OPPORTUNITIES SURVEY. One series of tests was given this autumn to first, third, sixth, ninth and twelfth grades, plus teachers, in about 5,300 schools -- nearly 1 of every 20. The tests were designed to carry out a survey, required by the Civil Rights Act, to show where children of minority groups are denied equal opportunities. Some schools refused to give the tests, after seeing questions on family, racial matters.

A questionnaire for pupils in the twelfth grade included: "Who is now acting as your father?" "Who is now acting as your mother?" "Where does most of the money come from that pays for your food, house and clothing?" "About how often last year did your mother or father attend parent-association meetings such as the P-TA?" "Think now of your close friends. How many of them are white?" "If you could have anyone you wanted for your close friends, how many would be white?" "If you could be in the school you wanted, how many of the students would you want to be white?" "If you could be in the school you wanted, how many of the teachers would you want to be white?" "How do you and your friends rate socially in this school?"

Questions for teachers included these: "When you attended (college) how many of the students were white?" "Did you say hello to students you didn't know?" "Have you ever attended any summer institutes or comparable training programs that offer special training in teaching or counseling the culturally disadvantaged?" "What will be your total annual salary from this school system this year? (Estimate supplements for extra services by using supplements from last year.)" "What kind of school do you prefer to work in, as far as ethnic composition is concerned?" "Which of the following policies on neighborhood elementary schools represents the best educational practice, in your estimation? (A) Neighborhood elementary schools should be maintained regardless of any racial imbalance produced. (B) Neighborhood elementary schools should be maintained, but where possible a device, such as reducing the grade span of schools, "pairing" schools, or another practice, should be used to promote racial balance. (C) The idea of neighborhood elementary schools can be abandoned without significant loss."

PERSONALITY TESTS. Other tests, given by researchers financed by grants from the U.S. Office of Education, cover a wide range. Some aim to outline psychological traits of children in certain types of schools. Some try to reflect the degree and effects of racial integration, or segregation, in a school district or neighborhood. Often the questions are of a highly personal nature, dealing with sex, religion, race, family relationships, income and possession. From a sample of the tests reported as a result of a special inquiry conducted by a subcommittee of the House Committee on Government Operations--

Ten questions from personality tests given to millions of high - school students: "True or False?--" "My sex life is satisfactory." "Evil spirits possess me at times." "I am very strongly attracted to members of my own sex." "I believe in a life hereafter." "I have been disappointed in love." "I dream frequently about things that are best kept to myself." "I am a special agent of God." "When a man is with a woman he is usually thinking about things related to her sex." "I read the Bible several times a week." "There is something wrong with my sex organs."

Ten questions from another test, where students were asked to fill in a blank space "with the first word that comes to mind," and were instructed to use only one word: "My childhood was_____." "My father_____me." "My _____sometimes gets me into trouble." "Secretly, I often dream of _____." "God is_____." "Men often_____women." "My father's chief fault is his_____." "My mother's chief fault is her _____." "_____makes me furious." "_____ is disgusting."

* * *

It is easy to criticize. Complaints always get attention.

Restraint, while often more desirable, usually attracts neither praise nor attention.

We are reminded of this because the pre-Christmas season is here now that December has arrived and the Thanksgiving holiday is safely behind us.

The effort to preserve the religious heritage of Christmas has both our sympathy and our support but some of the campaigns waged in its behalf have been cheap, tawdry and ineffective.

Last year at this time, Rep. Melvin R. Laird, Wisconsin Republican, unleased a blast at the post office department for putting out Christmas stamps not having a religious theme.

Laird maintained stoutly that the larger issue of separation of church and state was not involved in the stamp.

He may or may not be right about this.

But the post office is caught in the middle. If it chooses to let others put the religious emphasis in Christmas it is all right by us.

We recall a furor raised in one year about the UNESCO Christmas cards. Because none or few were offered with a religious theme, critics made the project appear to be a sort of international atheistic conspiracy -- perhaps even Communistic.

However little emphasis was placed by the UNESCO artists in earlier years on the religious background of Christmas in depicting holiday observance in foreign countries, this year's cards include a liberal number taking Christ's birthday for their theme.

We suspect that many of those who choose to seek publicity in complaining about the lack of religious themes in Christmas season mailings themselves select Santa Claus, Christmas tree and other non-religious or pagan symbols for their own Christmas cards, stickers and stamps.

Of the Christmas cards you received last year how many carried a religious message? Very few probably. Were you offended? Did you write your neighbors, friends relatives and congressman in protest?

You are a very unusual person if you did because if you are fair minded you must have known that no blasphemy or sacrilegious thoughts were intentionally conveyed to you in simple, well meaning Christmas messages.

We do not believe that the way to emphasize the real meaning of Christmas is to condemn in a loud voice all of those who simply wish us well on that day or greet us in the spirit of well wishers in a season that is particularly happy for children.

Social patterns cannot be effectively enforced with a bludgeon or by accusing those who greet you as pagans and unbelievers.

The shy young man, wed three months, met his doctor on the street and very unhappily reported that -- due to similar shyness on his bride's part -- theirs was still a marriage in name only. "Your mistake", the doctor advised after hearing the gloomy details of repeated ineptitudes, "is in waiting until bedtime to make advances. The thought of the approaching moment creates tension and impairs any chance of success. What you must do is take advantage of the very next time you both are in the mood." The young man thanked the doctor and hurried home to tell his bride of the heartening advice he'd received.

A week later, the doctor happened to meet the man again, and noticed that he was now smilingly self-possessed. "My advice worked, I take it?" he inquired.

The young man grinned. "Perfectly. The other night, we were having supper, and I reached for the salt -- so did she! Our hands touched . . . It was as if an electric current ran through us. I leaped to my feet, swept the dishes from the table, threw her down upon it, and there and then consummated our marriage!"

"That's wonderful. I'm pleased to hear things worked out so well," said the doctor, about to go on his way. The young man laid a hand upon his arm.

"There's just one hitch, tho, doctor," he said, uncomfortably.

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK AP -- It used to be easier in America to rob a bank in daylight than it was to get a decent cup of tea in a public place.

Things are looking up now. You can almost get a decent cup of tea in a bank while robbing it--banks do so much for one today.

One of the signs of maturity in a civilization is its ability to muster the service of a drinkable tea.

Although America is regarded as a youthful land, it is now 345 years from that distant day when the Pilgrims first stepped ashore here in 1620.

Ever since then we have tried to perfect a proper cup of tea, and it seems to me that we've almost got the problem licked.

Essentially, the solution is simple. You put tea leaves in a porcelain enclosure that has a spout. Then you pour absolutely boiling water over it, pause and recite from memory the counties of Ireland including the six still under British rule, and pour.

Then you sugar to taste, put in a little warm milk, and drink. You have all the liquid happiness that can be found under heaven.

Purists may insist upon refinements of this technique. They may say, for example, that good tea can only be made from free tea leaves, and they may criticize tea bags.

One of their bewhiskered jokes:

"We mailed some tea bags to our cousins in County Mayo and, not knowing what else to do with them, they hung them as decorations on their Christmas tree."

Actually, of course, all you need to do to make good tea is the mutual association of boiling water, tea leaves -- bagged or free -- and porcelain.

Waitresses now know this in Damascus, Hong Kong, Glasgow and Dubuque.

There is a variant known as instant tea made with cold water. It is not new. It was invented in Boston Harbor nearly two centuries ago by a number of unruly colonials dressed as Indians.

Tea is responsible for one of America's most firmly fixed habits.

During World War II our military tourists in Britain were annoyed because the English, even in the throes of battle, would pause at 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. to brew tea.

Our jeers have faded. Now no honest workingman in our own land can continue on the job without pauses at about those same hours for what we call "the coffee break."

What's That Law About Jury Tampering . . .??

Commercial Appeal

"What's that?" asked the medical man, puzzled by the other's sudden uneasiness.

"Well -- " the young man said, "we can never go back to The Four Seasons again..."

A MOCKERY OF PUBLIC WELFARE

Not long ago, a leading pharmaceutical company published a photograph showing one of its physicians steadying a 34 inch stack of 8,000 pages of reports that were necessary to meet the requirements under new regulations applying to the issuance of a new drug. The new regulations are proving so burdensome that medical progress may be seriously retarded.

While the drug industry is struggling to move against a mountain of regulations and red tape rolling from the office of one government agency, another government agency, the Federal Power Commission presented natural gas producers with a "weighty" problem -- a questionaire weighing almost 10 pounds which must be filled out in quadruplicate. The questions and instructions were sent to 114 domestic natural gas producers. The questionaire is believed to be the most detailed and extensive ever drawn by a government agency. It will require of each company an estimated 17,000 man-hours of work by specialized accountants. The cost in salaries alone will be about $85,000 per company.

The Commission said it needed the information it was seeking to enable it to fix the prices for natural gas. No industry objects to necessary and reasonable regulation. But there is nothing reasonable about 8,000 page new drug applications and 10 pound questionaires.

The pretty young thing came slamming into her apartment after a blind date and announced to her roommate, "Boy, what a character! I had to slap his face three times this evening!"

The roomate inquired eagerly, "What did he do?"

"Nothing," muttered the girl. "I slapped him to see if he was awake!"

PRICES ZOOM IN PARIS

U.S. Men can be well and comfortably dressed for practically any price they can afford to pay -- by they of modest means or able to shop at the finest shops. But even the more affluent class would be a bit stunned to see some of the prices being asked by the leading stores of certain foreign countries. As one example, an American fashion authority now in Europe reports: "At Pierre Cardin's, in Paris, one rack held his good-looking linen suits, with vests, in shades of navy to white to cocoa and deep blue. They are priced about $360 . In another corner, there were cashmere coats cut like riding jackets with belts in the back, about $650."

A new shop opened in the heart of the little town, with no sign of any sort on its awning, door or window, the nearest things to identification being the large clock in the window. A gentleman whose watch had stopped happened to be passing by, and he went inside and asked if they would repair it.

"I'm sorry," said the clerk, "But this is not a watch-repair shop. This is a branch of the hospital in the next block. All we do here is perform hemorrhoid operations."

The man begged the clerk's pardon and started to leave, then turned with a puzzled frown. "Then what's the significance of the clock in the window? he asked.

"Well," said the clerk, "what else could we put in the window?"

WHY OUR WINGS ARE MOLTING

The airplane has been with us for nearly 62 years. Commercial flight has been around for well over a generation. The continents are now only hours apart and man is but a few short years from landing on the moon.

Nevertheless, the overwhelmingly majority of Americans have never gone further from the surface of Mother Earth than an elevator will take them.

To find out why this is so and to try to make a dent in this vast untapped population of kiwis, an airline (American) has been conducting "flightseeing" tours of New York City for $5.95 and asking passengers to fill out a brief questionaire.

Fully 40 per cent of the first 1,105 persons who answered the questions had never set foot in a flying machine. Surprisingly, of these only 11 per cent said it was fear that had kept them bound to the ground.

Another 11 per cent gave expense as their reason; 23 per cent said they had never had the opportunity before; and 4 per cent said they simply had no place to go.

The rest -- 51 per cent -- could think of "no particular reason" why they had never flown.

Who was it said man is a creature of insatiable curiosity?

H. L. Hunt Says

TWO-PARTY SYSTEM

Speaking at Akron University on October 21, 1964, President Johnson said: "The responsible leaders of both parties, and I believe in the two-party system, think first of the good of the country." The president later firmly stated the necessity of a staunch opposition party to achieve good government.

Republicans have been slow in perfecting a workable recovery from the debacle of the 1964 election. Their Senate leader, a man I have long admired and one of the most able men in the U. S. Senate, Everett Dirksen (R-Ill.), has until recently acted as spokesman in the Senate for the President. Congressman Gerald Ford (R-Mich.) acted like a green hand.

Republicans must start acting like statesmen. Senators Hruska (R-Neb.), Tower (R-Tex.), and Thurmond (R-S. C.), should begin expounding a recognizable policy. In the House, Laird (R-Wisc.) and Gross (R-Iowa), are among the many constructive members. Robert Taft, Jr., whose loss of the Senate seat in Ohio can be regarded as a fluke, should expound Bob Taft's ideals. Bud Wilkinson (R-Okla.) if he continues in public life, is destined for greatness.

Communist and fascist dictatorships, with their ever-present "mandate from the people," are one-party systems, and suffrage is a meaningless formality.

In the U. S., some states have tried "one - party" government. New England, as a region of "one - party" states, fared poorly while losing important industries. The Old South, with largely "one-party" government, has been ignored in the big political panorama, although it enjoyed a near monopoly in senatorial and congressional committee appointments.

Along with the President, I believe in the two-party system.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Most urgent personnel problem facing LBJ is right inside the White House --namely, what to do about McGeorge Bundy, who has been offered a big job but actually doesn't want to leave; and what to do about Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara, who has been participating more and more in problems outside the Pentagon.

The President is reported inclined to replace Bundy with McNamara making him assistant president and the second most powerful man in the USA. This raises two significant questions:

1. Will McNamara, as coordinator of foreign affairs inside the White House, supersede Dean Rusk, Secretary of State?

2. Will military thinking dominate our foreign affairs, supposedly directed by civilians?

The answer to the first is that Dean Rusk doesn't seem to mind having Bob McNamara barge into foreign policy. They get along well together; even cooperate in making mistakes together. At the end of their joint meeting in Honolulu, Nov. 20, 1963, they issued a formal statement promising that 300 U.S. troops would leave South Viet Nam Dec. 3,1964, and that 1,000 more would depart before the end of 1964. This, they said, would leave 15,500 American troops in South Viet Nam.

Today is Dec. 6, 1965, and the 300 troops that were to leave by Dec. 3, 1964, have not yet departed. Instead of 15,500 U.S. troops in South Viet Nam, we have sent in more than 150,000, with approximately 30,000 more on the way.

Dean Rusk has not yet joined his friend, the Secretary of Defense, in the latter's recent statement, "We have stopped losing the war," which came as a surprise to many Americans because, judging from Pentagon statements, we were winning the war.

But, in any event, no sparks would fly around the White House if the President superimposed Bob McNamara, in effect, over Dean Rusk as an assistant president.

MILITARY ADVICE PREVAILS

The answer to problem number two is that military thinking has already dominated our supposedly civilian foreign policy for some time.

Specifically, and quite recently, we have had the former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Maxwell Taylor, serving as ambassador in South Viet Nam, and it was the Joint Chiefs of Staff who really sold Johnson on the policy of bombing North Viet Nam -- a policy which Secretary McNamara now tacitly admits has been a failure.

It will be recalled that on the night of Feb. 6 and the early morning of Feb. 7, when a hastily called White House conference decided to bomb North Viet Nam, Secretary of State Rusk was in Florida, ill, and George Ball, the acting Secretary of State, argued against the bombing. He knew that Soviet Premier Kosygin had just arrived in Hanoi, capital of North Viet Nam, and while he did not know specifically that Kosygin was in our corner, the State Department suspected it.

Later developments have shown that one day before we started bombing North Viet Nam, Kosygin had actually urged the Chinese to help end the war in Viet Nam, or as the Chinese put it, "serve as a pawn for U.S. imperialism."

However, on that fateful night, acting Secretary of State Ball was overwhelmed by the arguments of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Their advice prevailed.

Therefore Bob McNamara's transfer to the White House would really make no change in the fact that the military dominate U.S. foreign policy today.

BUNDY'S ROLE

The one man who has spoken out against military domination in closed door conferences is the White House adviser who now may be leaving, McGeorge Bundy. In the last few months he has been joined by Arthur Goldberg, U. S. ambassador to the United Nations, and by Vice President Humphrey.

Bundy is a former dean of Harvard, the son of an assistant secretary of state in the Hoover administration, and once wrote a book with elder statesman Henry L. Stimson on Stimson's experiences as twice secretary of war and once secretary of state. Stimson knew the perils of atomic war and passed on these fears to his young collaborator.

Bundy cannot speak out publicly as can McNamara. He fights his battles in the privacy of the White House. In various high level conferences, however, Bundy has differed with military advisers, sometimes also with the President.

Despite this, Bundy has been close to the President. Johnson likes him and has leaned on him.

Whereas some of the old Kennedy staff in the White House were aloof from LBJ, Bundy has been loyal and devoted. It is not true that he has remained only because he cherished an ambition to be secretary of state, nor that he wants to leave the White House now. He doesn't.

The President has been a bit irked, first because he thinks Bundy wants to leave, second because the Ford Foundation leaked word that it had offered Bundy $75,000.

There is nothing in the world that Lyndon likes less than news leaks. And he may well think that Bundy has leaked this column to me. I hasten to point that, having been out of the United States and in the hospital myself for some time, I have not seen McGeorge Bundy for four months.

Originally I though Bundy was not the best influence on Lyndon Johnson. It was Lyndon Johnson who convinced me otherwise. It would be too bad to have Bundy depart. However, it would not materially change American policy. That policy has long been dominated by the military and it will so continue.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Soviets Devising New Comintern World HDQS To Revive Successful "Innocent" United Fronts of 1930s.

New York: -- This bit of the past will explain much of the future:

Back in February 1934, Communist shock troops invaded a mass labor rally in Madison Square Garden. The Stalinists stormed in shouting "Unite and Fight" -- meaning join in a united front to fight a common enemy. The crowd refused to unite. The Communists chose to fight.

It was the biggest battle ever staged at the Garden. There was much blood, much bitterness, no unity.

A year later, at the meeting of the Seventh Congress of the Comintern (inside jargon for Communist International) as easier soft-sell policy was developed. Gently, persuasively, Soviet propagandists attempted to woo labor and the left into a "united front."

In the U. S. the Communist Party rolled up some 80,000 members. Scores of other thousands rallied to it.

Then in 1943 the Comintern was dissolved. The cold war cracked the united front. It died.

Now, away off in the distance, soon to be heard ever louder and louder, the Communist propgandists and activists are calling on labor and the slivered left to join them in a new mass "united front." The Soviet drive awaits only the creation of another centralized Communist International organization to push it into the U. S. and all free lands.

Now comes word that a new Communist International organization will be launched in the spring. It will be complete with a professional executive committee to handle day-to-day problems.

This word of a new Comintern comes from a truly self-effacing man, Louis Nichols, who is so esteemed by some of America's top newsmen that they would go swiftly to their typewriters to report the coming visit of Mao to Johnson City, if "Louis" said it were so.

Mr. Nichols, who has been closely observing the burgeoning Comintern, was for many years an assistant to the director of the FBI and thus one of the three men who ran the Bureau. He is a literate man, as familiar with Friedrich Nietzsche and Karl Marx as with John Dillinger and Al Capone.

Having labored in the vaguely unfinancial vineyards of the government for two decades, he now is executive vice president of Schenley Industries, Inc. He is not, however, far from the geysering fonts.

Recently he marshaled a series of official Communist actions and speeches to party comrades by the Soviet's little know theoreticians. The latter were particularly concentrated in the period from July 25 to August 21, 1965, when "the Communists celebrated with special emphasis the 30th anniversary of their Seventh World Congress, the last and most important Comintern meeting prior to its dissolution. . .This 1965 celebration became a springboard for launching a return to the 'united front' concept."

For the newcomers to report of what is heard on the left, it must be explained that the "united front" tactic is the offering by the Communist world apparatus of aid in any fight. This could be on traffic congestion, corruption, housing, sewers, political candidacies -- and for world peace and democracy, Soviet style.

Tactically, it means burying revolutionary zeal and patter and infiltrating cultural, liberal, political and labor groups wherever possible. And let the conservatives not believe they're free from such enticements either.

If the labor and political and liberal leaders recognize and rebuff the Communists and reject their offer of money and manpower, the Comintern-ites do not simply go away. They launch new innocent fronts as a lure.

One of the forces the Communists will invade will be the labor movement.

"The veteran leadership of labor has been through the fire," said Mr. Nichols to an old friend the other day. "They have withstood the raids from the left on memberships and treasuries. They have been tested.

"However, there is a need for the younger leaders, the younger rank and file, to make themselves knowledgeable before they are forced to go through the same heartbreaking, and backbreaking, fights which their movement underwent three decades ago."

Those of us who watch little-noted events abroad see Mr. Nichols borne out. The powerful British Labor movement, the Trades Union Congress, on Oct. 27 voted to send a fraternal delegation to the Soviet's all trade union convention.

The German labor movement, overriding the objections of its president, Ludwig Rosenberg, has voted for cultural and labor exchanges with Russian labor.

The French Socialist and Communist Parties, which have powerful labor movements, are in a political popular front.

United front-ism of the thirties is crowding in on the U.S. It will be fascinating to see whether it does as well with the beat generation as it did with the lost generation.

Dexter Defeats Kennett, Takes SEMO Tournament

Poplar Bluff Wins Over Bulldogs

DEXTER -- First seeded Kennett was upended Saturday night by the third seeded Dexter Bearcats 70 to 54 in the Championship game of the SEMO Conference Tournament.

Poplar Bluff defeated Sikeston 44 to 33 in the consolation game.

The Bearcats blasted out to a 43 to 22 first-half lead. Their lead was never threatened.

The Bearcats offensive power was distributed among five players who scored in double figures.

Paving the way was Larry Bailey with 17 and Rick Mooney with 15. David Guethle and Larry Layton each scored 11 and Bill Ringer pumped in 10.

Larry Mullins was the pacesetter for Kennett with 13.

The Bulldogs leading scorer was McKinley Lambert with 11 points. Richard Montgomery sank 10. No other Bulldogs hit in the double figure column.

Busby paced the Mules with 19.

Sikeston stayed within three of Poplar Bluff until the end of the first half play, 20 to 17.

The Mules made their big move in the third period moving out to a 34 to 24 lead.

Busby scored nine of his 19 points in the Mules third period move.

Bulldog Coach Gene Dawson said the Bulldog's weren't ready for the tough Mule defense.

Unitas Downed By 500 Pounds

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Chicago's fierce Bears racked up Johnny Unitas, roughed up the Baltimore Colts, and opened up the Western Division race for a down-to-the-wire finish.

It happened in the National Football League's big one at Baltimore Sunday. After the brawl was over, it was Bears 13, Colts 0. But the crusher for Baltimore came earlier, toward the end of the first half when some 500 pounds of brawn chopped down Unitas.

Bear defensive tackles Stan Jones and Earl Leggett caught Unitas in a pincer movement that knocked the superstar quarterback out of the game, out of the rest of the season, and mostly likely out of the league title playoff -- if the Colts make it.

A few hours after the game, Unitas underwent surgery for torn ligament in his right knee. He definitely will be sidelined for Baltimore's two remaining season games, and the chances are very slight he would be ready for a possible match with Cleveland's Eastern champion Browns for the championship Jan. 2.

Despite the loss in the penalty-filled, fist - swinging affair with the Bears, the Colts still lead in the West with a 9-2-1 record. But the Green Bay Packers are right behind at 9-3 after beating the Minnesota Vikings 24-19 and have a showdown coming with the Colts at Baltimore next Sunday, when capable but seldom-tested Gary Cuozzo will fill in for Unitas.

On the final weekend, the Colts play the Rams at Los Angeles and the Packers meet the 49ers at San Francisco.

Meanwhile, the surging Bears still are in it at 8-4. They've lost only once in their last nine games -- 26-21 to Baltimore four weeks ago. The Bears take on the 49ers in Chicago next week, then finish at home against the Vikings.

Elsewhere in the NFL -- the Browns, with the Eastern title already wrapped up, came back in the final period for a 24-16 victory over the Washington Redskins; rookie Tucker Frederickson scored three touchdowns as the New York Giants took over sole possession of second on the East, whipping the Pittsburgh Steelers 35-10; the Los Angeles Rams buried the St. Louis Cardinals 27-3; the 49ers turned back the Detroit Lions 17-14 with two fourth-quarter touchdowns; and the Dallas Cowboys blocked two field-goal tries in edging the Philadelphia Eagles 21-19.

Rookie flash Gale Sayers cashed in on one of the Bears' many chances with a 61-yard touchdown sprint and two field goals by Roger Leclerc rounded out the scoring at Baltimore. The Colts never got as far as the Bears' 20.

It was ragged and rough football. There were 12 fumbles and three interceptions, penalties totaling 202 yards, and several fights.

Zeke Bratkowski and Bill Anderson combined for a 27-yard scoring pass play in the third period that proved decisive for the Packers against the Vikings, who dropped their fourth straight. Green Bay also was hit by a quarterback injury, with Bart Starr going out early with jammed fingers of his right hand.

Frank Ryan's 14-yard touchdown pass put Cleveland ahead of Washington, and Jim Brown iced it with a four-yard scoring burst. It was the 20th TD this year for the great Cleveland fullback, tying the single-season NFL record set last year by Baltimore's Lenny Moore.

Brown, the league's scoring and rushing leader, gained 141 yards for a 12-game total of 1,450.

The Giants, now 6-6, climbed ahead of St. Louis and Washington in the race for the East's runner-up spot with their rout of the fumbling Steelers. Frederickson scored on runs of 13 and three yards, and on a pass from Earl Morrall.

Jets Sign McAdams

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Owner Sonny Werblin of the New York Jets, who outfits his players with green uniforms and his draft choices with greenbacks, has pulled off another coup in the battle for player talent between the two professional football leagues by signing Oklahoma linebacker Carl McAdams.

McAdams, the Jets' No. 3 choice in the American Football League draft and a first-round pick of the National League's St. Louis Cardinals, was an All-America selection and one of the most prized prospects in the country.

It was the second time the Jets had won a tug-of-war for St. Louis' No. 1 draft choice--New York outbid the Cardinals for quarterback Joe Namath last year--and represented the first player picked on the first three rounds of the NFL draft who had been lured into the American League.

McAdams' loss was the first the NFL has suffered after signing nine of its 16 first-round draft choices. The AFL has signed five of its 10 first-round selections and lost one.

The American League also has lost a second-round pick--Baltimore getting Kentucky tackle Sam Ball in a battle with the Jets.

The AFL also signed two high future picks from the 1964 draft --San Diego State and Gary Garrison going with San Diego and Northeastern's Bob Cappadonna going with Boston during the weekend. San Francisco was the loser both times.

Garrison, a No. 1 pick of the Chargers, went on the NFL's sixth round to Philadelphia but the Eagles traded his rights to the 49ers. Cappadonna was the Patriots' No. 3 future and was selected by the 49ers on the 10th round.

Cards Slipping, Lemm Says, 'Pitiful'

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS AP -- Be it on the football field or in the office, the St. Louis Cardinals let everyone slip out of their grasp Sunday.

First, Roman Gabriel eluded them and then Carl Adams got away as the Cardinals extended their losing streak to four in the National Football League and two in the signature race with the American Football League.

Quarterback Gabriel of Los Angeles of the NFL slithered away from St. Louis linemen time after time to complete passes that carried the Rams to a 27-3 victory over the Cardinals.

Cardinal Coach Wally Lemm called his club's performance "pitiful."

But the Cardinal front office performed no better in New York, where it lost a No. 1 draft choice to the Jets on the AFL for the second straight year. First, Joe Namath, now McAdams, a linebacker from Oklahoma.

Club owners Charles and William Bidwill had "no comment" concerning the battle of the signature. But Lemm had plenty to say about the struggle for the football.

"There's more to it than injuries," Lemm said of his club, which has lost six of seven games and has fallen out of second place in the eastern division.

"We haven't got any injuries on offense and we're not moving the ball worth a darn. The fans are yelling for razzle dazzle plays, but we've got to play steady football."

The defense didn't get off lightly, either.

"I could see Gabriel with his size and strength getting away from one guy," he said, "but he was getting away from three guys."

Garbiel, 6-foot-3, 225 pounds, completed at least two long yardage passes with Cardinals hanging on him and he scrambled away from a blitz to complete a 59-yard scoring pass to Billy Truax for a 7-3 lead.

He later hit Dick Bass for 16 yards and a touchdown and finished with 17 completions in 31 attempts for 203 yards.

As the injured Bill Munsen's replacement, Gabriel now has guided the Rams past the Green Bay Packers and the Cardinals.

And while Gabriel riddled the Cardinal defense, his own defenders were holding St. Louis without a touchdown for the first time since 1962. The Cardinals, who gained only 166 total yards, offered only one serious scoring threat, marching to the Los Angeles seven, and that ended when Merlin Olsen recovered Charley Johnson's fumble and rambled 59 yards.

OFF THE BLOCK—Catcher Bob Uecker keeps in shape during the off-season in the back yard of his Wisconsin home. Uecker went to the Philadelphia Phillies from the St. Louis Cardinals in a six-man trade.

APPLE FOR YOUR TEACHER

Remember the thrilling spelling bees
When you were only nine?
And teacher smiled and said to you,
"Go to the head of the line."
How proud you were no one could know,
Though you remember still,
The ones who called you "teacher's pet,"
Old Jim, and John, and Will.
The teacher. . .you did not forget,
Her kindness meant so much;
She helped to mold your character,
With firm. . .but gentle touch.
She longs to see you once again,
So hurry now and call,
Invite her out to share with you,
October's Greenhouse Ball.
What memories you could exchange,
What happy smiles, and tears,
How satisfied her heart would be
To hear of your good years.
So take a teacher to the ball,
She never shall forget,
You wanted her to share the greatest
Greenhouse party yet.

Peace Demonstrators Once Were Afloat

EDITOR'S NOTE -- Peace demonstrators march today in the United States -- but 50 years ago they floated, aboard Henry Ford's chartered ship. Here's a vivid anniversary flashback to that remarkable, much-ridiculed voyage intended to stop World War I, and how some surviving participants remember it.

NEW YORK AP -- "We're going to try to get the boys out of the trenches by Christmas."

So saying, Henry Ford sailed off for Europe with 90 other idealists just 50 years ago-- on Dec. 4, 1915 -- in the Scandinavian - American liner Oscar II. His ambitious goal was to stop World War I.

Now, at a time when protesters against U.S. military involvement in Viet Nam march across the land, few members of the Ford peace mission still are alive.

They rejected any suggestion of a parallel between their peace campaign and the drive to get the United States out of Viet Nam.

Ford and his followers hoped to end World War I before the United States could be pulled into it.

Their chosen instrument was something they called the Neutral Conference for Continuous Mediation which they would set up in Stockholm in neutral Sweden.

Unlike the get-out-of-Viet Nam agitators, they had no quarrel with the nation's foreign policy.

But they had hopes that a private initiative might speed the day when peace negotiations would halt the carnage in Europe.

They were largely ridiculed by the press of America and the world and almost wholly ignored by the belligerents.

"Great war ends Christmas Day, Ford to stop it" read a typically satirical headline in the New York Tribune.

The New York World called the voyage of the Oscar II "an impossible effort to establish an inopportune peace."

The crusading do-gooders struggled on for 14 fruitless months.

Finally, on Feb. 7, 1917, Ford washed his hands of the project, picked up a bill for $465,000 and remarked:

"Well, we got a million dollars worth of advertising out of it, and a hell of a lot of experience."

A survivor of the little band is Louis Lochner, a peace-monger of the day who later became a Pulitzer Prize -winning Associated Press foreign correspondent.

Interviewed by telephone at his home in Fair Haven, N. J., Lochner, now nearly 79, said cheerfully:

"Well, the peace ship was a stunt but the welfare of humanity was in our thoughts. We felt that somebody ought to do something to end the war, and we did our best.

"Maybe it all came to nothing in the end, but who knows? Perhaps the Neutral Conference for Continuous Mediation germinated the idea which grew long after into the United Nations.

"The Viet Nam protests? There is no comparison between them and the Ford peace mission. The circumstances were so completely different."

Another survivor is Earl W. Tucker, 75, a retired banker of Syracuse, N. Y. He was one of 36 university students--29 boys and seven girls -- who comprised the young intellectual group aboard the Oscar II.

"The Ford expedition," said Tucker, "was not in any way the type of so-called peace demonstration we are seeing in connection with Viet Nam today, and had nothing in common with it.

"The present day demonstrations are aimed at criticizing our government's policy and attempting to bring pressure to bear to get it changed.

"The delegates on the Ford expedition were desperately anxious to see a cease-fire arranged in World War I before our military involvement became necessary.

"But when the United States later declared war and the die was cast, many of us who took part in this expedition joined the armed services of our country to do what we could to help defeat those who were hoping to conquer and enslave the free people of the world."

For example, Tucker said, his cabin mate on the Oscar II, William H. Draper Jr., went on to a military career and became a general in the U.S. Army.

The conception of a neutral mediation conference was a consensus of a number of groups with visionary plans for stopping the war.

One main group was headed by Rosika Schwimmer, a Hungarian pacifist and feminist, and another by David Starr Jordan and Lochner.

Discussing the war during an interview, Ford remarked:

"I'd give all my money--and all my life -- to stop it."

Talks with Madame Schwimmer and Lochner quickly followed and Ford told Lochner:

"We want to do something dramatic. We'll charter a ship!"

Ford invited a cross-section of national leaders in to come along, but many who praised his objection found reasons for sending their regrets.

Thomas Alva Edison, a fellow inventor, went down to the pier in Hoboken to see Ford off and the motor magnate offered him a million dollars to join the company. Edison just smiled and shook his head.

Acceptors included S. S. McClure, publisher of the magazine which bore his name; Gov. Louis B. Hanna of North Dakota, and Judge Ben Lindsey of Denver, a nationally famous liberal and reformer.

Elmer Davis, later to be one of the most noted of radio's newscasters, was one of the 54 newsmen assigned to the ship.

The Oscar II had hardly entered the Atlantic when Ford came down with a cold which confined him to his cabin for the rest of the trip.

After a 15-day voyage, the ship arrived at Christiania, Norway. Four days later Ford left for Detroit, explaining that he had promised his wife he wouldn't be gone long.

The peace crusaders journeyed on to Stockholm, Copenhagen and Holland. In The Hague they made public a document outlining their principles, many of which were incorporated decades later in the charter of the United Nations.

The permanent council of mediation was established in Stockholm, with delegates from Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland, Switzerland and the United States. Most of the peace ship people then returned to America.

Lochner, who had remained on the scene, was recalled to America by Ford in January 1917. He saw President Woodrow Wilson twice and conferred with the motor magnate several times.

Within a few weeks, Wilson made his historic speech urging the belligerents to reach a "peace without victory."

Soon after, Ford told Lochner the private crusade in Europe should stop. He apparently felt that Wilson was doing as much for peace as could be expected of America, wither governmentally or privately.

"He withdraw support from his peace mission under the influence of his business associates," said Lochner. "Ford was a man of genius, but like many another genius exceedingly unreliable."

Author Mark Sullivan, writing of the peace mission in the publication "Our Times," declared:

"After its failure, dying down to an echo of gigantic and exhausted laughter, it deprived every other peace movement in the country of force and conviction."

On April 6, 1917, the United States declared war ON Germany.

Time Is Running Out

By General Frederick Coutts

Without doubt there are those who for some time have been calculating the number of days to Christmas.

Possibly harassed department store managers have been studying their graphs which, based on comparative figures, indicate when they may expect the peak of the shopping rush. Maybe a dad or mother is even now working out how much time he or she has left to complete the purchase of family presents. And some small boy, his mind hardly on the current class lesson, is trying to remember how many days there are in the month, and on his fingers, to total up how long it will be before he can don the space suit he has ordered from you-know-who.

Perhaps those warning notices have already begun to appear in your local paper. Thirty more shopping days to Christmas. Twenty more. . .Fifteen . . . Ten. . .Five. . .

It seems that even with this happiest of holiday seasons there is an inescapable time factor. No evangelist could exhort us more earnestly than do our main street stores to remember that what we would buy we must buy quickly. There is a last or final shopping day after which the present which has not been purchased must remain unpurchased. The Christmas card which has not been sent must remain unsent. The deadline once passed, what has not been done by way of Christmas preparations must remain forever undone. There is an element of judgment even with our shopping. All our desire to remember some long-forgotten friend is in vain if we don't think of him until Christmas Day is half done. We've had it by then -- and so has he!

We take too casual a view of this season of the year if we suppose that its happiness rests upon the uncertain hope that a good time will be had by all, for mainfestly that is not true. the virtue of Christmas as a high festival lies in the fact that it speaks of what God has done in visiting and redeeming His people, and our happiness lies in acknowledging Him whom God has sent to be our Lord and Savior. For our attitude to Jesus will reveal whether or not we have begun to understand why there is a Christmas at all.

Among the Scriptures appointed by the Church to be read during the Advent season is one in which the Apostle Paul maintains that there were certain opinions or judgments which did not bother him at all. "For my part, if I am called to account by you or by any human court of judgment, it does not matter to me in the least. Why, I do not even pass judgment on myself . . . My judge is the Lord. . .For he will bring to light what darkness hides, and disclose men's inward motives" (NEB).

One of these things which did not bother Paul was what other men might think of him. And it was just as well he was somewhat indifferent on this point, for he was called a good many hard things in his time.

Neither was he troubled about maintaining a high opinion of himself. He was too much of a realist to be eaten up by a sense of his own importance. But, he went on, "He that judgeth me is the Lord." That is to say, he was concerned about how he stood in his relationship to Jesus.

So must we all be; for He whose coming we remember at this time of the year is not just a Baby about whom we sing sentimental lullabies for a few days in December and then forget for the rest of the year. It is by Him we are judged, and that is one of the soberer truths of which this season reminds us. Like the number of shopping days to Christmas which bid us make up our mind what we want to buy while we still have time, we have to make up our mind about Jesus while yet -- in the old evangelical phrase -- we are in time and out of eternity. There is a deadline with faith as well as with the shopping list.

Those whose memories go back like mine to the first world war may recall one of Studdert Kennedy's poems in which he imagines a Cockney soldier, whose life had been far from blameless, dreaming that he was in the other world and facing the Judge who knows all. Said he:

Any day by day and year by year
My life came back to me.
I see'd just what I were, and all
I'd 'ad the chance to be.

"I see'd just what I were." That is just what Jesus does to us. In His presence we see ourselves as we truly are.

This is what happened when He came as the Babe of Bethlehem.

At the news of One born to be King, Herod's first concern was for the safety of his own throne. That mattered to him more than anything else in the world. To preserve it he was prepared for butchery. The coming of Jesus threw up in harsh relief his own savage selfishness.

The religious leaders whom Herod consulted showed themselves indifferent to the coming of the King; for though they knew their sacred Scriptures by heart, they never dreamed for one moment that what they were quoting was actually happening under their own eyes.

Shepherds and wise men came to worship; and, when they found Him who was born to be King, they laid before Him their gifts. All these men rose or fell by their attitude toward Jesus.

This is what a wise old man named Simeon said would happen. Speaking to Mary he foretold that "this child is set for the fall and rising again of many in Israel." My only comment would be, "Not only 'in Israel.' "

Judgment of this kind can be somewhat merciless. Yet we can only blame ourselves when we ask for it. Those of us who know our Dickens will recall how Mrs. Skewton, mother of the second Mrs. Dombey, tried to preserve the appearance of youth in old age, but one day she collapsed. Then, runs the story, "They took her to pieces in very shame and put the little that was real of her on a bed."

"The little that was real"--that could be said of more of us than poor Mrs. Skewton.

Ah, Lord, before Thou dost become our Judge, persuade us to accept Thee as Saviour!

Federal Reserve Baffles Johnson

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is finally baffled.

He put the heat on business and labor to prevent inflation by keeping prices and wages down. But William McChesney Martin Jr. had his own ideas on how to prevent inflation, and Johnson couldn't do a thing with him.

Martin, just a few days short of 59, is a conservative, tight-money man and chairman of the Federal Reserve Board which under law is set up to operate independently of the President and Congress.

Martin's seven - man board thought one way to put a brake on inflation was to raise interest rates, which was the opposite of Johnson's thinking. He feared higher interest would put a brake on the booming economy.

Sunday night the board, ignoring Johnson, went ahead, boosted the rates.

The man whose foresight in all this turned out best was Johnson's fellow - Texan and Democrat, Rep. Wright Patman, chairman of the House Banking Committee.

Last June, Martin made a speech at Columbia University, saying there were "disquieting similarities" between the present prosperity and the boom that preceded the 1929 market crash and the depression of the 1930s.

The stock market promptly took a dive. Many brokers thought Martin's speech was a factor in that. Patman said Martin had parted company with the Johnson administration and should step out, letting the President appoint his own chairman.

(The President appoints the board members, with Senate approval, but he can't fire them. They have fixed terms. Martin's is 14 years. He was first appointed by President Harry S. Truman, was reappointed by President John F. Kennedy.)

Johnson's secretary of the Treasury, Henry H. Fowler, took a sunnier view than Patman. He said he didn't see anything in Martin's words foretelling action by the board to raise interest rates.

Johnson talked with Martin, said he saw no reason for "gloom or doom." But months passed and Johnson must have sensed or learned what the board had in mind, for Sunday the Washington Post said that last week Johnson phoned Martin from his ranch, asking him down for a weekend talk.

The Post said that Martin said he couldn't go until Monday and then on Friday, Martin called a Reserve Board meeting which Sunday night ordered an increase from 4 to 4.5 per cent in the discount rate banks pay when they borrow money from the Federal Reserve.

This would immediately affect major borrowers like corporations. The rates would also affect mortgage borrowing.

They probably will not directly affect consumers' interest rates but interest rates affect everyone, directly or indirectly.

There doesn't seem much he can do about it. Patman said Johnson should demand Martin's resignation and promised an investigation of Martin's actions by his committee.

Plans are still indefinite for the house-to-house canvass. However, it is expected to be held sometime during December.

Catholics To Join In Prayer

CONWAY -- Roman Catholics throughout the diocese of Springfield - Cape Girardeau will unite with other Catholics for three days of prayer marking the end of the second Vatican Council, Bishop Ignatius J. Strecker, bishop of the diocese announces.

The three-year-old council will end formally Wednesday, the Feast of the Immaculate Conception and a holy day of obligation for Catholics.

Pope Paul VI has ordered that every parish in the Catholic Church hold a tridum--three days-- of solemn prayer ending on the eve of the holy day, so that the entire Catholic world will be united in prayer at the conclusion of the Council.

The Pope has urged Catholics "to beg for a new Pentecost that will renew, through the Holy Spirit, the face of the spouse of Christ and of the times."

Bishop Strecker in a pastoral letter sent from Rome to be read at all the masses in the diocese Sunday said:

"We urge our beloved Religious and Faithful to participate to these Masses and receive the Holy Eucharist, Secondly, the Litany of the Blessed Virgin Mary and the Memorare are to be recited after each Mass celebrated on these days. Finally, we ask our priests and Religious daily to make a Holy Hour before the Blessed Sacrament and our faithful to pray the Rosary as part of their family prayers in their homes."

Tentative Approval Given For Recreational Loan

BLOOMFIELD -- Tentative approval of loan insurance for a loan of $115,000 was given Friday by the Farmers Home Administration to Crowley's Ridge Recreational Center, Inc., of Bloomfield, Senator Stuart Symington, Senator Edward V. Long and Congressman Paul C. Jones announced.

The loan is for the conversion of 92 acres of land from agriculture to recreational facilities for the use of Stoddard County residents. Plans for the recreational complex call for a golf course, swimming pool, four acre lake with picnicking and boating, tennis courts and clubhouse.

In a move that started February 1st by members of the Bloomfield Chamber of Commerce to obtain better recreational facilities for residents of Stoddard County a corporation was formed in order to make application to the Federal Government for financial aid and assistance. Two weeks later a special committee was named by the Chamber of Commerce president Fred Koenig, naming D. L. Bess as general chairman, J. C. Newcomer secretary of the overall committee, Elvis Mooney chairman of the swimming pool and tennis court committee and Jim Spain as chairman of the golf course committee.

In April the board of directors voted to start a charter membership drive, within one week 68 county residents joined the organization, by May 9th the membership enrollment had risen to 99 members.

A request for the funds was then submitted to the Farmers Home Administration in the following form $35,000 for a nine hole golf course, $2,500 for tennis courts, $30,000 for the club house and $35,000 for the swimming pool and bath house. The request also included the estimated cost of operating the center and amortization of the federal loan for the first year.

The list of towns that will be served by the center was submitted, they included Advance, Dudley, Essex, Gray Ridge, Bell City, Puxico and Bernie.

Officers of the Corporation are D. L. Bess, president; Ronnie Cox and Henry Cain Jr., vice presidents; J. C. Newcomer, secretary and John Davis treasurer.

The executive committee members of the corporation are Ronnie Cox, Henry Cain, John Davis, Marvin Smith, J. C. Newcomer, Alvin Corbin and D. L. Bess.

The Board of Directors are (in addition to the above-named officers) Jesse Bennett, Koss Blomeyer, Elvis Mooney, James Spain, Joe Welborn, Richard Hart, Bill Morgan, Jack Bess and Norman Coburn.

Final approval by the Farmers Home Administration is awaiting the completion of plans by the Crowley's Ridge Recreational Center.

Upon final approval of the loan according to Mr. D. L. Bess the next step in securing the recreational facilities will be to advertise for bids. Another requirement is to have 125 members. At present there are 114. Anyone interested in membership may contact any of the officers, members of the committee or board of directors.

Not contemplating any difficulties in the bidding all goes well, construction will start in early spring of next year.

$125,000 Damage In Friday Storm

CARUTHERSVILLE -- A general survey showed this week that damage resulting from last Friday night's freak wind storm totaled more than $125,000 in Pemiscot county but there were no reports of any serious injuries in this area.

The storm, which hit this area at about 8 p.m., was part of an unruly weather pattern that covered northern Arkansas, eastern Missouri and Illinois and left a wide-spread trail of damage in the three state area, as well as parts of Tennessee and Kentucky.

The heaviest property damage reported in the county was at the Steele airport where four light aircraft and a hangar were destroyed and several other plans and two more hangars were heavily damaged by the storm.

The manager of the airport, which is operated by the city of Steele, estimated the damage there will run between $75,000 and $100,000.

The 485-foot community television antenna in Caruthersville was also toppled by the heavy winds.

Owned by Bootheel Video, Inc., and valued at about $35,000, the tower had just been completed earlier this fall and the cable television system it was to serve had not yet gone into operation.

One witness who saw the huge steel tower fall said a cable apparently snapped first and the tower swayed several times before collapsing.

The tower was located in a field between the levee and the Mississippi River just west of the Powell Ferry road.

At about the same time, the wind knocked out four large plate glass windows in the show room of George Cook Motor Co., which is located on Highway 84 just across from the Farr Boulevard intersection.

Just down the road the wind caused heavy damage to the front of the Clevidence Machine Shop. A television antenna and two metal awnings were blown off the Casanova Lounge and Restaurant. A television antenna on the Tennessee Service Station at the intersection of Highway 84 and Fair Boulevard.

An employe at Tennessee Service Station said the wind sounded like a huge diesel engine at about the time the heavy damage was done in that area.

A large revolving sign in the parking lot of the Kroger Store at Ward Avenue near 7th Street was blown down and destroyed at about the same time.

An empty grain bin on a farm south of Caruthersville owned by Harold Jones was blown over by the winds.

Several trees and large tree limbs were blown down throughout the entire county but other reports of damage were relatively mild.

Mayor L. R. Bain of Hayti said his community must have been fortunate for Tuesday he stated there had been no reports of any major damage from the storm reach him. The power failure was the only real noticeable effect of the storm, he said.

The two major power sources in this area, Ark-Mo. Power Company and the Pemiscot-Dunklin Electric Co-operative, reported heavy damage and some service interruptions resulting from the storm.

Kenneth Sellers, Ark-Mo. manager in Caruthersville, said there were two power failures Friday night which effected the communities of Steele, Hayti, Portageville and Caruthersville. The both of them totaled little more than 20 minutes, Sellers said.

The damage was high, however, and rather rare, he stated. Five double-pole structures carrying 110,000 volt lines were blown down by the storm. Three of them were between Hayti and Campbell and two between Blytheville and Steele. This is an oddity, he pointed out, since he has not in 17 years known of the main transmission lines from both the north and south to be knocked out.

Luckily, he said, the 33,000 volt lines were not damaged and local lines were transferred to these for their source of power. Had the lower voltage lines been downed then the situation would have been critical, Sellers stated.

Ark-Mo crews were called out immediately and worked until noon Sunday to get all the lines back in service. Service to customers, however, was not interupted for more than the twenty minutes Friday night.

Subscribers of the PDEC were not as fortunate, or at least some of them. Service to about 75 users were not restored until late Saturday. It was reported that about 75 poles were downed by the storm.

Manager Ingram, who lives with his family in a trailer at the airport, said he was there when the storm hit. He said he did not see a twister but from the sound of the storm and the way the debris was going in different directions he feels it must have been a tornado that hit.

The Ingram's trailer was also damaged but he said no one was injured.

The planes that were destroyed were upended and others were damaged when the one hangar was completely demolished. Two other hangars were seriously damaged.

Several other airplanes were heavily damaged by the storm. It was reported that most of them were probably covered by insurance. It was not determined immediately if the hangars were insured.

Work got underway early Saturday to clear the wreckage of the television tower and prepare for erection of a new tower. By Sunday night the tower arrived by trailer truck from Fort Worth, Texas and crews started work Monday erecting the structure.

A spokesman for Video Towers, Inc., who put the tower up, said they expect to have it back in place by the middle of this week. The Texas firm had the first tower in place on Sept. 7.

Bootheel Video said the mishap is not expected to create any delay in starting their service of cable television for subscribers in Caruthersville and Hayti. The first hook-ups are expected to be put in homes next week with service ready immediately.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — It was family day in municipal court when a father and his daughter entered pleas of guilty and were fined $15 each on charges of speeding 60 miles per hour in a 45-mile zone. Their arrests took place at the same location, just 20 minutes apart.

December Expected To Be Wet

PORTAGEVILLE -- The below normal rainfall pattern that carried through November is expected to be reversed during December

Low pressure centers are expected to develop in the Southern Plains and move through the lower Mississippi Valley, transporting moisture from the Gulf of Mexico into the Bootheel. The frequency and amounts of precipitation will total greater than usual. In the past, wet Decembers have produced totals ranging from near four to as much as six and one half inches. Rain is likely on 12 to 15 days during the month.

The majority of high pressure systems affecting the Mid-South will enter the Pacific Coast and cross the Rockies rather than plunging southward from the cold polar regions. Consequently, most of our colder periods will result from penetration of the edges of cold outbreaks. If these should coincide with the northward advance of moisture from the Gulf, we could see some freezing rain or snow. Five day and daily forecasts will give advance notice of such a development. When you plan to travel during the month, check weather reports and forecasts for cities ahead of your route to avoid icy conditions that could cause delay traffic hazards.

Normal rainfall for Missouri Bootheel cities: Caruthersville, 4.03 inches; Fisk, 3.45 inches; New Madrid, 3.93 inches; Poplar Bluff, 3.40 inches; Dexter, 3.62 inches; Morehouse, 3.62 inches; Parma 3.67 inches; and Sikeston, 3.71 inches.

Temperature averages will run normal for the month. Most of the wet weather can be expected to come as rain. With field work already curtailed by rain in late November, the region is not likely to see enough open weather in December to allow soils to firm up.

Even with normal rainfall, the region generally collects two to three inches more rain than is lost by evaporation.

This gives a good chance to carry adequate soil moisture through the winter into next spring.

E. B. Nace, University of Missouri area farm management agent, suggests that with abundant moisture indicated, combined with numerous changes from cold to mild temperatures, consideration should be given to moisture content of stored grain. Condensation in bins can add moisture that eventually works into the grain. Drying by forced air, especially unheated air, will want to be scheduled during cloudy periods, particularly early in the morning and late in the day.

The driest air moves into the Bootheel on northerly winds when cold air from the north penetrates deeply into the nation's midsection. Relative humidity is low from mid forenoon through mid afternoon under sunny conditions. Drying with unheated air will be effective on most days when the temperature is 12 degrees or more above the dew point.

Bootheel radio stations equipped with the Mid-South agricultural weather teletypewriter circuit have temperature and dew point forecasts and reports available for broadcast.

A MODERN ELECTRONIC ENGINE PERFORMANCE ANALYSIS
IS LIKE A DOCTOR'S X-RAY

When you go to your Doctor for a checkup, he usually insists on an X-ray, to determine the exact condition of the vital organs that control body processes.
An electronic diagnosis of your engine and its electrical system is like an X-ray in that it determines the exact condition of each part and component that controls car performance.
Many vital engine parts are out of sight. It is impossible, for example, to see the action of the distributor points under actual working conditions. However, with our modern Rotunda Electronic Diagnosis Equipment, the exact condition of all such hidden parts is clearly indicated on the oscilloscope screen. Nothing is left to guesswork — nothing is overlooked.
Let our trained diagnosis technicians give you a complete report on every phase of your engine's performance. It will pay big dividends in helping you to avoid future trouble.

Open House At Illmo Library

ILLMO--On Sunday the Riverside Regional library will be host to an open house from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. at its Illmo Service Center branch.

The library was moved into the Hartner Memorial building, was formerly the Rialto Theatre. The building was given by the Hartner family to the Illmo Development corporation for use as a library.

The building has been remodeled.

The building is 33 feet wide and 70 feet deep, and provides room for a children's section, reading and study area, a casual corner for adult patrons, and a large area to shelve the 10,000 volumes of the library's collection.

The library was established in April of 1957 as the first branch of the regional library which serves Scott, Cape Girardeau and Perry Counties.

The Riverside Regional Library was organized in 1955, when the voters of the three counties approved the library proposal in April.

Similar service centers were established in Benton in May of 1957. In July of the same year the city of Perryville began to contract for library services with the Riverside regional library, and voted to merge its library with the county in spring of this year.

A fourth center was opened at Altenburg in the fall of 1963.

The library at Perryville has moved to a new building, the former Legion Hall. Plans are complete for an open house there Dec. 12.

Cotton Trading Continues Slow

HATYI -- Cotton trading continued slow in Southeast Missouri.

There was limited demand for low middling and lower qualities at prices netting farmers from 75 cents to $1.25 over corresponding loan rates.

Below grades were traded at prices ranging from 15 to 18 cents per pound.

Most other qualities were tendered to the CCC loan.

Interest Rate On CCC Loans Raised

BENTON - In order to make possible continued participation by private lenders in the financing of Commodity Credit Corporation loan programs, the U.S. department of agriculture today announced that the rate of interest payable on certificates of interest has been increased from 4.1 to 4.25 per cent per year.

This increase is made to bring the interest rate payable on certificates in line with interest rates which have prevailed generally in the money market.

The increase is not retroactive.

Elderly Dunklin Couple Robbed Of $1,090 Savings

KENNETT -- Mr. and Mrs. Tom Martin, an elderly couple who live on Kennett, route three west of 19 ditch, were robbed of $1,090 by three men who entered their home under false pretense Thursday afternoon.

Martin reported that the trio came to their door at 2:50 p.m. and reported they were from the "light company and were there to check the electrical outlets."

Two of the men began to inspect wiring in the front room while one went into a back bedroom. Mrs. Martin, after about five minutes, suggested to her husband that he see what the man in the bedroom was doing. When Martin walked in he saw his savings, which the burglar had removed from a lard bucket kept in the bedroom closet, poured out on the bed.

"You're not taking our money, are you?" Martin said. And the man replied, "I'm not taking all of it."

The men hurriedly picked up the money and left in a light-colored pickup truck. At no time did the men show a gun.

The Martins reported the robbery and described the burglars to the highway patrol, Kennett city police and authorities from the Dunklin County sheriff's office.

One was reported to be about 40, weighed 200 pounds, was dark complexioned with black hair. Another was estimated to be 30 years-of-age, weighing 180 pounds, 5 feet 9 inches in height, with blond hair. The third man was about 45, 6 feet tall, weighed 155 pounds and had dark hair.

No trace of the burglars or their identity had been made.

Farmers In St. Francis Basin Vote For Injunction

DUDLEY -- The Association for St. Francis River Control met Thursday night and voted to file an injunction against the U.S. Corps of Engineers at Memphis, Tenn., as soon as they can raise sufficient funds to carry through the injunction.

About two-thirds of the money needed has been donated by farmers, landowners, banks and lending agencies in the area, John Bowie of Dudley, treasurer, reports.

The last meeting of the association was held on October 6. Previously, the association had listed its grievances and requested that U.S. Corps of Engineers correct the situation that had flooded their cropland below Wappapello Dam last September.

The Corps of Engineers reviewed their plans for improving the St. Francis River drainage and promised to answer the requests of the association and present their plan for correcting the flooding within 45 days.

According to Virgil Low of Kennett, the Dunklin County representative of the association, 40 persons were present at the meeting Thursday in the Dudley School. John Bowie had called the Memphis office of the Corps of Engineers just before the meeting and was informed that he would have to go to "higher authorities", presumably in Washington, D. C., for any information.

Landowners and tenants, who live or own farms in the flooded lowlands, have felt the pinch of the flooding in more ways than just the loss of their 1965 crops, Low reported.

"The dam was built to protect property along the St. Francis River from flooding. It has done just the opposite. Government land above the dam floodgate has reaped all the benefits. Rather than let that upper land flood, they open the control gate and let the surplus water cover our lowland farms," Low said.

"Now we are having difficulty in getting loans refinanced because of the floor risk," he declared. "That land is rich and is the best risk in Southeast Missouri if it were not for the floods caused by the way the Corps of Engineers control the gates at Wappapello Dam."

Forms for reporting damages resulting from the September floods were circulated among those present at Thursday night's meeting. Reports were that individual farmers suffered from $1,500 to $50,000 worth of crop loss. Landowners, with considerable property in the area, may claim as much as $300,000 worth of damage to their cropland.

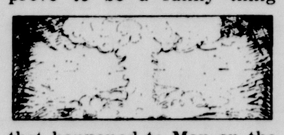

H. G. Townsend of the real estate department of the Corps of Engineers, who has been in the area purchasing right-of-way for improvements on the St. Francis River from Chalk Bluff to the dam, was present at the meeting but said he had no authority to speak in behalf of the Corps of Engineers.

The association will hold another meeting on Thursday, Jan. 6. The place was not decided but members were told they would be notified and information about the meeting would be published in area newspapers.

Virgil Low said that any Dunklin County landowner or tenant of cropland in the area flooded by the overflow from Wappapello Dam who was not present at the Dudley meeting Thursday night, may secure damage report forms at Hoover's Trailway Service Station in Campbell.

Officers and members of the Flood Control committee include: Brad Jolly of Fisk, chairman; Kenneth Menton of Fisk, vice-chairman; John Bowie of Dudley, secretary - treasurer; Virgil Low of Kennett, Dunklin Co. representative; E. B. Bowie of Dudley, North Stoddard Co. representative; Sherman Webb of Broseley, Butler Co. representative; and Ben Snow, Clay Co., Ark. representative.

Jerry Tries Harder

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Because he is the No. 2 Van Dyke brother, Jerry has to try a little harder. And with a starring vehicle like "My Mother, the Car," he has to try really hard.

It has been uphill all the way for "My Mother, the Car." It was one of the most ill-received shows of the season, critics carping at the premise of a car radio speaking to a young husband with the voice of his late mother. Ratings have been only fair, and the series is a precarious bet for a second season.

Jerry Van Dyke is quite naturally a realist, as you might expect of a man who is trying to get ahead in show business when his brother is Dick Van Dyke. With accustomed candor, Jerry was analyzing the series' ills on the set one day.

"We're still feeling our way," he observed. "We've tried broad comedy, aiming at our kid audience, which seems to be considerable. We've also tried family situations to please the adults. I just work here."

Jerry stared at the 1928 auto which houses the voice of his mother — actually the voice of Ann Sothern.

"You know, I could learn to hate that thing," he muttered. "It's tough talking to a car. I mean, when you're talking to an inanimate object, you're forced to animinate yourself to keep the scene alive. I've done everything but stand on my head.

"Another difficult thing is shooting with one camera, like a movie. I've played before live audiences all my life; I thrive on the reaction of the crowd to pace my comedy. I'd much prefer a three-camera show before an audience, as Dick does. I think he's better under those conditions than he is in movies. You can see him respond to the audience."

Win or lose, Jerry figures the show has been good for him, proving that he can carry a program on his own.

"And if it's canceled," he shrugged, "well, I've still got my banjo."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr. Charles Blanton
Sikeston Standard
Sikeston, Missouri

R. C. Martin says

This article could easily be interpretated as unpatriotic by the insincere mind. Nevertheless, it is the duty and responsibility of every American who loves his Country; who cherishes freedom, and who is devoted to its cause, to voice his concern.

The time has come for all peace loving Americans to ask themselves the question, why are we in war in Vietnam?

I think heretofore the American people have been willing to trust the thinking of the political and the military minds to guide this Nation's war policies and efforts to a sensible conclusion.

We are being told by those who are entrusted with the security and general welfare of this Nation, that we are fighting a war to save the freedom of the Vietnamese people; to keep communism from spreading throughout Southeast Asia. Technically, the way I see it, we are fighting a war simply to stop communism from destroying the freedom of all men.

Now if the ideology of communism is so socialistic and dictatorial in essence, so distructive to the freedoms of freedom loving people of this world, as we are being told by so many of the so called high calibered thinkers in our government. Let all good and honest men rise up and openly against it now.

What I am so deeply concerned about, and what I want every reader of this article to ask himself is why are the precious Americans, along with the others, dying in the snaky, tangled jungle, and muddy, sloppy, rice paddies in Vietnam? Of which many of these paddies are turning red with the blood of hundreds of sons, fathers, and husbands from our own beloved America.

These people, I am told, are not really concerned whether they are communist or capitalist.

The alarming question is why is there so little being done in this Country about stopping communism? Why are they allowed to travel at will, with no questions asked, through our fair cities and up and down our beautiful country side plotting with every step a communist take-over of our lovely land?

Now the time has come for all freedom loving Americans to ask themselves, ask their neighbors, ask their editors, ask their Congressmen and Senators why so little effort is being made at home to stop this communist take-over. Have they not boldly stated, they would bury us?

Ask why it is that almost every time the Supreme Court rules on matters pretaining to communism that it rules in their favor, ASK, ASK.

Sincerely,
R. C. Martin

CARE LAUNCHES FOOD APPEAL

CARE, the overseas relief agency, today launched a $6,000,000 campaign to provide food for hungry people in 22 countries overseas.

Miss Mary Ann Vooren, regional CARE director, outlined CARE's feeding task for 1966. More than 4,492,000 individuals will receive food sent by American donors, at a cost of $1 per package. Packages contain milk powder, flour, corn meal, beans, rolled wheat and vegetable oils, averaging 27 lbs. each.

Miss Van Vooren stated that most Americans are unaware of CARE "partnership programs," where host governments pay most distribution costs. Such programs, coupled with the American-supported Food Crusade, will bring CARE food to a total of 37,000,000 people next year.

"Since 90% of that number will be fed through CARE programs supported by their own governments," she pointed out, "the effectiveness of CARE abroad is fairly self-evident. It is also a fine illustration of the self help concept."

U.S. Food for Peace commodities are the mainstay of CARE's food aid, although food products donated by private firms are often included, such as canned soups and meats. Buying, packing and delivery costs are balanced so that each donated dollar provides one food package. Packages are presented as gifts of the American people, along with the name of the specific donor, except in Vietnam where the procedure has been suspended during the war emergency. Deliveries there are made as gifts from Americans, but without individual names.

Donors may specify the countries in which they wish their contributions to be used. Countries include: Afghanistan, British Honduras, Chile, Colombia, Cyprus, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Greece, Haiti, Hong Kong, India, Iran, Jordan, Korea, Macau, Pakistan, Poland, Sierra Leone, Turkey, Tunisia, Vietnam and Yugoslavia.

Contributions should be mailed to CARE Food Crusade, Box 2266, Kansas City, Mo., 64142.

Goulet Wants To Act

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Sometimes you wonder about actors. Take a fellow like Robert Goulet. The robust native of Lawrence, Mass., can pull down a few hundred thousand a year merely exercising his singing voice in night clubs, concerts and television. So why would he chuck it for the precariousness of a spy television series.

"For two reasons," he explained during a brief stopover here. "One is that a series will give me a chance to stay in one place for six months, something I haven't been able to do for the past three years.

"The other reason is that a television series might convince movie producers that I can act. They may be in doubt after my first two pictures."

His films were "Honeymoon Hotel" and "I'd Rather Be Rich." To put it kindly, they did not fulfill the promise he displayed as Lancelot with Richard Burton and Julie Andrews in "Camelot" on Broadway.

Goulet has canceled a flock of munificent singing dates to begin production in Munich next week on "Blue Light," which will debut on ABC Jan. 12. He reported that his take per week will be $5,000, out of which he must pay his manager and company expenses. Thus he'll end up with just about what he could earn in one night in Las Vegas.

"To afford the show, I had to build up a backlog of resources," Goulet remarked. "That's why I just did a tour of college concerts.

"If the show should survive for a few years, I'll be the winner in the long run."

Its chances? "Blue Light" will start with one or two strikes against it. For one thing, series that debut in midseason seldom succeed. For another, spies are profuse on television this year.

The story line of "Blue Light" — that's Goulet's code name — has him portraying an Allied agent in Nazi Germany during the last World War. The first half dozen shows will be filmed in actual locales of Munich, Berchtesgaden and other Hitler haunts. Then the company returns to Hollywood for more shooting.

United Fund Near Goal

KENNETT -- The United Fund Campaign is within $500 of the 1965 goal of $20,000, according to the latest report of J. E. Ditto, chairman of the board of directors. The campaign would go over the top, Ditto delcares, with just a little boost by several more contributors.

The funds will be distributed between seven community agencies who direct and care for a variety of activities which are voluntarily supported -- Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, U. S. O., Dunklin Co. Assn. for Retarded Children, Cerebral Palsy, Salvation Army and American Red Cross.

Among contributors who have donated to the campaign this past week are:

Jo Ann Dees, Jewell M. Brooks, Walter Starnes, Riggs Supply Co. employes, Thomas Crunk, Tony W. Crawford, Jack Hancock, Leroy French, Lawson Brents, Farmers Flying Service, Inc., Roth's Department Store employes, Standard Oil Co., Needham E. Holly and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pelts.

Dear Editor:

I like to ask your favor and would appreciate it very much if you can give some help.

I am very anxious to go to America for study, for I am interested in American life, how Americans live at home, how they think, what the wear, the kind of music they listen to, the books they read, the hobbies they pursue, etc., etc. And I hope to realize about various things of America rightly.

There are three ways to go to America for study, but I have only.

It is some one of the America that becomes my sponsor. And I want to live as a member of the family one term.

Though it is very selfish request of mine I have the strong will to do so.

Therefore after much thinking, I fell to have impudence to request to you.

Will you please find out one who will be willing to be my sponsor.

If there aren't any one you can recommend me, then may I ask you to insert a little note about it in your paper? I would appreciate it just the name. I wish you all the luck in the world in your promising editor career.

Yours very truly
Kiyoko Wakao

P.S. I want to introduce myself:

Gentlemen of the Press:

Communism means to commune with one anqther, and give a meaning of comradship. This was a great word concocted by the Russians, and the American public through the newspapers have been gullible enough to swallow.

Now all these people in these so called Communist countries are just common slaves. These people must do as they are told.

They work where the government tells them to and at a bare living wage. They cannot change jobs without consent. They cannot own a business, not even a barbershop. Shortage of food and money keeps them always in want.

These satellite countries did not go Communist willingly. The Russian soldiers occupied them and forced them to do so by gun point, and a great many were murdered for objecting to same.

They have no way to change these conditions. They are helpless. Their money is worthless outside of their own country.

The people cannot communicate with one another without the government's permission and then spies are always present, and if anyone gets up and shouts against the government, he may come up missing.

Now, you gentlemen of the press could easily do something for this great country of ours, by using the name "Slaveryism" when writing about "Communism." This would help educate our youth, and you would not have so many misinformed and misguided youths as has been shown lately. They do not know what Communism is really like. They think it sounds good for all of us. If they knew the real truth, they might feel as I do, that if it takes about 30 years to win in South Vietnam, we should continue the war.

It appears that our ninety per cent of the people in the slave countries are opposed to Communism, and the majority of university students want to come to the United States.

All these people have developed wonderful neck mucles because when talking privately with one another in hotels and restaurants, they first turn their heads around to see who might be listening.

I am an American that appreciates living in the greatest country on earth. We may need you newspaper writers to help keep it that way.

What a terrible blow it would be to the Russians if all the newspapers in the U. S. A. would use only the name Slaveryism, which it really is, instead of Communism. Yes, Gentlemen, use the name Slaveryism; it will be the biggest blow yet to Communism.

The Russian line, or propaganda for "Communism" is of course that all are working for the common good -- a share and share alike process. It is not. The people are all slaves to the State. The individual has no right to decision of preference as to what he does.

The English and the French, thru the Magna Carta and the French Revolution helped the common man make his first great steps to freedom. We have all been thinking this had achieved an impetus that could not be stopped. The Russians have stopped it. They have not only tightened the yoke of slavery on their many millions, but have imposed it on the peoples of their satellite countries. It is a great step backwards in the history of men's fight for freedom. You newspaper men have the power to change it.

Respectfully submitted,

Answers Your Problems

Dear Readers: I received tremendous response to the letter from the mother of the 15-year-old mental patient who committed her son to a state mental hospital. She wrote, "I know patients used to be treated like animals but I thought conditions had been improved." Her signature was "Faith Shattered."

I asked my readers if this letter could have come from THEIR state. Here is a sampling of the replies:

California: I am a former patient of a state mental hospital in California. It might surprise you but I am taking the side of the state. If that boy tried to escape twice, the third time he might have twisted the iron leg off a bed and split a nurse's head open.

I was put into solitary when I imagined the attendants were conspiring to kill me and hide my body.

I threw a full tray of food at a nurse and I was placed in a room with only a mattress on the floor. Now that I am well I understand things better. The employees of the California state hospital system deserve medals for their bravery and their kindness. -- D. B. L.

North Carolina: I, too, had a teen-age son who was committed to a state mental hospital. I thought the attendants were mistreating him because he cried so much. I know now he only wanted to be taken home where he would get his own way. Today the boy is 21 and self-supporting. Our state hospital did for him what I, his mother, could never have done. -- APPRECIATIVE.

Michigan: I have nothing but good to report about the Traverse City state hospital. I was a patient there for over a year. The food was good, the rooms were clean and the attendants, doctors and nurses were kind and thoughtful. I now hold a responsible position, drive my own car and am living proof that the mentally ill can be rehabilitated. -- T. C. R.

North Dakota: I am a 16-year-old boy who has spent eight months in the state hospital. I just read the letter from the mother who complained about the way they treated her son. What did she expect? Color TV in every room maybe? A lot of kids who are mentally ill get away with murder at home. This doesn't help them get well. I know because it was part of my problem. They are teaching me here to be an adult, and I am grateful. -- EX PSYCHO

New York: I was a patient in a New York state mental hospital and I swear to God a person couldn't get better treatment if he went to the fanciest private hospital in the country. -- RECOVERED

Illinois: My sister is a patient at the Illinois Psychiatric Institute. We hated to commit her because we had heard state hospitals were snake pits. I can report that she has been treated beautifully and has shown remarkable improvement.

I thank the Lord we live in Illinois. --PROUD

Connecticut: "Faith Shattered" could not have written from our state. We operate two residential treatment programs for children up to 16, plus many child guidance clinics. Children who are able to attend classes do so in a fine building opened in 1962. We have excellent recreational facilities complete with swimming pool. Connecticut does very well by her disturbed children and she hopes to do even better. -- SEN. ABRAHAM RIBICOFF

Indiana: After living next door to a 15-year-old homicidal boy whose parents took him out of a mental hospital because they didn't treat him like royalty, I have a word to say to all mothers of disturbed children:

I heard the rifle shot that killed the boy's grandmother. I saw them carry the body out of the house. I recall how his mother kept saying he'd "outgrow his meanness."

Our late president was assassinated by a man whose mother didn't think he needed psychiatric care either and the whole world has suffered the consequences. -- INDIANA

Hearnes Calls For Conference On Problems

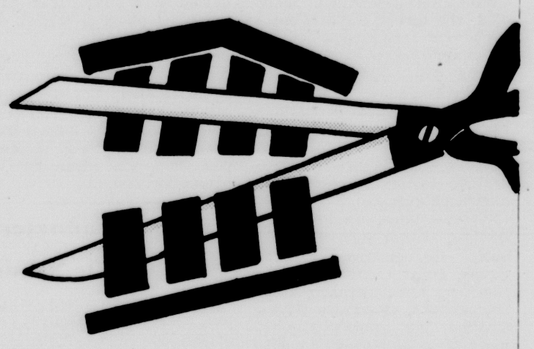

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. AP -- Gov. Warren E. Hearns has called a conference this week to discuss the money problems connected with the state's mental health program.

He will meet with Jack Stapleton Jr., president of the Missouri Association for Mental Health and publisher of the Dunlin Democrat in Kennett; Dr. George A. Ulett, director of mental diseases, leaders of the House and Senate appropriations committees and others.

Stapleton said Friday that the State Division of Mental Diseases faces a major crisis and its program will be bogged down if the legislature does not provide money in 1966 for increasing the salaries of professional staff members.

Additional money must be appropriated or nine regional clinics, one to be built in Sikeston, cannot be opened on schedule, Stapleton said.

About 20 million Americans receive Social Security benefits.

Cut the college problem down to size

It's too big, too important to let slide.

The problem: Colleges are facing greatly increased enrollments every year.

But they may not be able to afford the facilities, equipment and qualified teachers to train these potential leaders.

That makes it our problem.

We urgently need leaders to plan wise use of our national resources, manpower and human skills.

A loss in leadership would be a threat to our economy. It would affect jobs, opportunities, living standards.

Keep our leaders coming, by helping colleges meet the cost of educating them. Give to the college of your choice.

College is America's best friend

Today in U.S. History

Today is Monday, Dec. 6, the 340th day of 1965. There are 25 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1492, Christopher Columbus discovered the island of Haiti and named it Hispaniola.

On this date:

In 1876, Rutherford B. Hayes was elected president of the United States by a special commission after an Electroal College dispute left Samuel J. Tilden one short of the required majority vote.

In 1889, the president of the Confederacy, Jefferson Davis, died.

In 1938, Nazi Germany and France signed a nonaggression pact.

In 1941, President Franklin Roosevelt made a personal appeal for peace to Emperor Hirohito of Japan.

In 1943, a three power declaration was issued on the Roosevelt • Churchill • Stalin agreement at Tehran.

Ten years ago — The United Nations General Assembly voted to shelve further discussion of racial discrimination in South Africa.

Five years ago — World Communist leaders, meeting in Moscow, issues a manifesto which declared that war was not inevitable.

One year ago — British Prime Minister Harold Wilson arrived in Washington for conferences with President Johnson.

Earthquakes are anything but rare; about 50,000 big enough to be felt or noticed without the aid of instruments occur annually over the earth. Of these about 100 produce substantial destruction if they are near inhabited areas. Great earthquakes occur on an average of once every year in some parts of the world. One such struck Tokyo, Japan, in 1923 and killed an estimated 74,000 people.

PEEK-A-BOO MAP — What looks like fancy grillwork actually is a see-through watershed map at the Agriculture Department Hydrograph Laboratory at Beltsville, Md. H. N. Holton, laboratory director, checks the map which defines wooded areas, fields and bodies of water. Soil samples collected from the sections are used in estimating floodwater runoff from rainstorms on 200 experimental watersheds throughout the country.

Soviet Space Capsule Nearing Moon

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet space capsule neared the moon today as scientists waited to see whether it would succeed in making a soft landing.

Luna 8, a 3,421-pound bundle of instruments, rockets and casing, was scheduled to reach an area of the moon's surface called the Ocean of Storms at about 4:50 p.m.

The moon capsule's course was altered Saturday to ensure a landing in this region, the Russians announced.

As Luna 8 approaches the moon, retrorockets are supposed to fire, braking the craft to a gentle descent through the airless lunar atmosphere. This is a tricky maneuver made necessary by the impossibility of using parachutes, which need air to support them.

British Defy Demands Of 36 Nations

LONDON (AP) — The British government today defied demands of 36 African nations to crush Rhodesia's rebellion by mid-December.

In doing so, Prime Minister Harold Wilson and his Cabinet faced the risk of a diplomatic break with member-nations of the Organization of African Unity, which called Friday for quick and forceful British action against Prime Minister Ian Smith's breakaway Rhodesian regime.

Wilson first gave word of Britain's reaction when he told an interviewer he intends to end Rhodesia's rebellion without bloodshed and, if possible, by negotiation.

Then, Commonwealth Relations Secretary Arthur Bottomley reported to Wilson and his ministers on the outcome of his exchanges with President Kenneth Kaunda. The Zambian leader had asked for British military seizure of Kariba Dam and its installations.

Afterward a high government source said:

"President Kaunda's request is quite unacceptable. No agreement is possible, at least for the time being, and no British ground force will be sent to Zambia as things stand now."

FLBA Elects Two Directors

CARUTHERSVILLE--"Farmers use credit as a tool, just as they use improved crops and better machinery," W. E. (Buck) Fletcher, member of the district Farm Credit Board, told those attending the annual meeting of the Federal Land Bank Association.

Fletcher commended the local FLBA for its record of service to farmers through the years and predicted even better service in the future.

Francis Waggoner, manager of the Federal Land Bank Association of Caruthersville, reported that new loans amounted to $1,046,335 during the current year to date.

Elected to three-year terms on the association board of directors were Stanley Greenway of Caruthersville and Gene Clevenger of Senath. Paul Summitt FLBA president, was chairman for the annual meeting.

Entertainment, which followed the dinner served by the Wesleyan Service Guild, was furnished by a choral group from the Caruthersville High School.

The Federal Land Bank Association of Caruthersville is wholly owned by farmers it serves in Dunklin and Pemiscot Counties. In addition to Greenway and Clevenger, directors include: Paul Summitt of Cardwell; Jack H. Tipton of Caruthersville and James O. Taylor of Caruthersville.

Astronauts Spinning Smoothly Up In Space

DeGaulle Given Rebuff

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle maintained silence today after French voters handed a stinging rebuff to his bid for first-round victory in the presidential election.

With a record turnout of 84.9 per cent of the voters, De Gaulle polled only 43.96 per cent of the vote in the first round of voting Sunday. This forced him into a run-off Dec. 19 with left-winger Francois Mitterrand, the No. 2 man in the six-man race.

Some Gaullist officials had predicted before the election that if De Gaulle did not get the massive endorsement he wanted, he would refuse to run in the second round. Other officials differed.

"The general is a fighter," said one supporter, "and he will not abandon the combat now."

A second-round victory was considered in the bag for De Gaulle if he runs. Although his image was bruised by the outcome Sunday, it is not likely that he will change his attitudes and ways.

In department after department where he had shown strength in other electroal tests, De Gaulle polled less than 50 per cent of the votes.

His pride must have suffered additionally from the knowledge that election of the president by direct vote was the result of a constitutional change he had inaugurated.

Only once before, in 1848, did French voters have a direct say about who would be elected president.

These were the results from nearly 24 million valid ballots in metropolitan France:

Charles de Gaulle 10,504,007 for 43.96 per cent.

Francois Mitterrand 7,655,042 for 32.04 per cent.

Jean Lecanuet 3,770,771 for 15.78 per cent.

Jean-Louis Tixier - Viganancour 1,269,095 for 5.31 per cent.

Pierre Marchilhancy 414,056 for 1.73 per cent.

Marcel Barbu 278,420 for 1.16 per cent.

Still to be recorded were returns from about 446,000 voters in overseas territories.

Prices Of Stocks Plunge

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices plunged early today following the Federal Reserve Board's increase of the discount rate. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slumped 14.98 points to 931.12 in the first half hour of trading.

Trading became heavy after a sluggish opening.

Big blocks of stock crossed the New York Stock Exchange ticker tape. Most of them were blue chips showing losses.

Some stocks were down as much as $2 a share from Friday's close.

The Board increased interest rates to their highest level in 35 years, overriding Johnson administration economic policy and drawing immediate presidential disapproval.

The board said that higher rates will help prevent inflation and aid in overcoming the persistent U.S. balance-of-payments deficit.

It ordered:

— An increase in the discount rate from 4 to 4.5 per cent, its highest level since 1930. This is the interest the 12 regional Federal Reserve banks charge on loans made to member commercial banks. Any upward movement generally spreads throughout the entire credit structure — applying to consumers who buy houses, cars and other goods on the installment plan.

— An increase in the maximum interest banks may pay on specified time deposits of more than 30 days from 4.5 to 5.5 per cent, its highest level ever. This might tend to attract money from other areas — the stock market, savings and loan associations, for example — into the banks.

The board left unchanged the 4 per cent interest ceiling on regular savings accounts.

The administration is powerless to alter the actions. Although board members are appointed by the President, they compose an independent agency, subordinate to no one.

In Johnson City, Tex., President Johnson said: "I regret, as do most Americans, any action that raises the cost of credit, particularly for homes, schools, hospitals and factories."

The first reaction in banking circles generally was favorable, although some expressed surprise over the time savings deposit interest raise.

Mishap Injuries Kill Young Man

John H. Wilson, 34, Portageville, died Thursday as a result of injuries suffered Nov. 18, when his truck overturned on a curve on route D, two miles east of Lilbourn.

He was driving a 1963 Ford pickup truck and was alone. He was thrown out of the vehicle.

He died in Pemiscot County Memorial hospital in Hayit where he was taken with scalp wounds.

Three area highway accidents produced 11 injuries Saturday and Sunday with one accident accounting for six of them.

Fast driving around a rural highway curve in Cape Girardeau county caused six young men and women to be hospitalized, some seriously, when a 1957 Chevrolet, driven by Ralph Hartley, 20, Millersville, overturned on rural route KK, four miles west of Old Appleton, Sunday.

Hartley is believed to have suffered a broken back in the mishap. Five other passengers injured less seriously were Janet Stroud, 16, Oak Ridge, with a chest injury; Frances Poe, 20, neck injury; Johnny Newell, 16, Oak Ridge, back and internal injuries and broken collarbone; Leslie Newell, 20, Oak Ridge, cuts and bruises; Marty Aldrich, 18, Jackson, cuts and bruises. All were taken to the Southeast Missouri hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Two persons were seriously injured on route U, three and one-half miles west of Caruthersville, Saturday morning. Virginia Brown, 45, Caruthersville, driver of a Chevrolet, started to pass another car, ran off the highway to avoid a collision and overturned. She received a head injury and was transferred to a Memphis hospital.

Jimmy Ward, 5, Caruthersville, a passenger, received a serious head wound and was taken to the Hayti hospital.

Three persons were injured Sunday at 1:40 a.m. on highway 84, one mile west of Caruthersville.

A 1965 Falcon, driven by Arthur Brogdon, 33, Hayti, ran into the rear of a 1956 Chevrolet, driven by Charles Kirby, 26, Bragg City.

Kirby received cuts on his head. Two passengers in his car, James Kirby, 34, Bragg City, received a head injury, and Auge Condel, 39, Bragg City, received a neck injury. The three were taken to the Hayti hospital.

Pad Crews Ahead Of Schedule

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — Astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell Jr. sped smoothly around the world today and preparations moved ahead at a fast rate for the attempt by two manned Gemini spacecraft to carry out the world's first rendezvous in space.

Paul Haney, the voice of Misson Control at Houston, reported pad crews were running 14 to 16 hours ahead of schedule in the race to launch astronauts Walter Schirra Jr. and Thomas P. Stafford in the Gemini 6 spaceship from Cape Kennedy, Fla.

The launch is scheduled for Dec. 13, in the ninth day of the scheduled Gemini 7 endurance mission, but Haney said Flight Director Chris C. Kraft was "looking into that eighth day possibility."

At Cape Kennedy, however, a space agency spokesman said the crew was that far ahead in only one phase of the operation —the electrical mating of the spacecraft to the Titan 2 booster rocket.

A spokesman for the Martin Co., prime rocket contractor, said the booster phase of the preparations was only about four hours ahead. He added that the possibility of a Dec. 12 launch was rather slim.

The Gemini 6 spacecraft will fly at 17,500 miles an hour in pursuit of the Gemini 7. Pilots of the two ships will attempt to rendezvous in the skies and score a spectacular space first by flying in formation several hours.

Gemini 7 began its 28th orbit at 9:40 a.m. (EST).

As Borman and Lovell awoke from a sound sleep, Russia was attempting to stage its own spectacular.

A Soviet space capsule hurtled through space toward the moon and a possible soft landing in the Ocean of Storms about 4:50 p.m. (EST). If the mission succeeds, the instrument package could radio back valuable information on the lunar surface, data essential to a manned landing.

Haney reported the tracking station at Carnarvon, Australia, had to call the Gemini 7 several times before the astronauts awakened, but that Lovell responded with a cheery "good morning to you!"

A short time later, Navy Cmdr. Lovell was given permission to perform the first "space striptease" by taking off his space suit whenever he desired.

Infantrymen Stand Off Viet Cong

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Caught in murderous machine-gun crossfire from a Communist regiment, U.S. infantrymen stood off wave after wave of attacks with help from the sky by U.S. Air Force and Navy jets.

The battle 40 miles northwest of Saigon raged Sunday near the bloodied rubber plantation where U.S. and South Vietnamese troops have been hunting the Communists for days following the near destruction of the Vietnamese army 7th Regiment Nov. 27.

Sporadic firing continued today. The Communists repeatedly probed another U.S. battalion in the area during the night.

The Viet Cong warned of "punishing new blows" against Saigon, similar to the terrorist attack on a U.S. enlisted men's billet Saturday. Eight persons were killed, including one American.

Along the coast 260 miles northeast of Saigon, a U.S. Marine amphibious force swept across a Communist stronghold after storming ashore Sunday and killing 14 Viet Cong. Eleven others were reported killed by fire from 7th Fleet destroyers and attack planes.

The Viet Cong were reported to have lost as many as 200 dead in a battle Saturday between South Vietnamese forces and the Communists for control of a three-hamlet complex near Quang Ngai City, 320 miles northeast of Saigon.

Vatican Council Votes Its Approval Of Last Schema

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican Ecumenical Council gave a decisive vote of approval today to its final schema, on modern world problems.

Pope Paul VI promptly accepted the document although an unusually large number of prelates voted against its blanket condemnation of nuclear warfare.

The fiercely contested schema emerged from the voting with the largest bloc of opposition votes of any of the council's decrees — 251. Council spokesmen said 2,111 prelates voted for it.

Spokesmen said the chapter on war and peace containing the condemnation of nuclear warfare had been opposed by 483 council fathers in earlier section-by-section voting. The chapter got 1,710 favorable votes, well above the required two-thirds majority but relatively low as council votes have gone.

Many American prelates opposed the ban-the-bomb tone in the section.

Council spokesmen said another key section of the document, urging further birth control studies and suggesting Roman Catholicism's ban on contraception may not be final, was approved by a vote of 2,047-155 in the section-by-section vote.

The vote in St. Peter's Basilica completed the work of the three-year-old council. The schema and three others will be proclaimed at a public session in St. Peter's Basilica Tuesday and the council will come to a ceremonial end Wednesday.

Pope Paul VI proclaimed a five-month special jubilee for the world's 500 million Roman Catholics to promote the council's decisions. He outlined a program of celebration "in every diocese of the Catholic world from Jan. 1 to May 29 (Pentecost Sunday)."

A jubilee is a period of indulgence, or remission of temporal punishment due for sin. During the jubilee indulgences are granted to persons taking part in the special services.

At Tuesday's public session, Pope Paul also will issue the council decrees on religious liberty, the priestly life and missionary activity.

The section on war and peace deplores the arms race and mentions stockpiling of nuclear arms as a danger to the world.

President Told Blackout In East Didn't Have To Happen

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson was told today the massive Northeast power blackout didn't have to happen — yet could happen again. Experts urged new precautions and perhaps new legislation.

Johnson got a 95-page printed report on preliminary findings by the Federal Power Commission in a Johnson-ordered investigation of the Nov. 9 power failure that affected 30 million people in the United States and Canada.

To discuss the report, the President summoned retiring FPC Chairman Joseph C. Swidler to the LBJ Ranch near here.

According to the report, the chain reaction that plunged 80,000 square miles into darkness could have been avoided had employes at Canada's Sir Adam Beck hydroelectric plant on the Niagara River reset an electric relay to handle power loads that had increased significantly since the device was last set in 1963.

Allegations of man-failure were not limited, however, to the Beck plant. The report also said:

—Employes of the Consolidated Edison Co. perhaps could have prevented the blackout from enveloping all of New York City had they acted quickly to shut down parts of their system at the first warning of trouble.

—The complete collapse of the interconnected power system in the Northeast might have been avoided had employes of many individual utility firms taken similar action.

—The chief operating engineer of Consolidated Edison told the FPC that, with benefit of hindsight, power might have been restored in New York City twice or even four times faster. The blackout there lasted from 8 to 13 hours, depending on the section of the city.

"There is no evidence whatever that sabotage was involved in any stage of the power failure," the FPC concluded. It said the impact of the blackout on military and civil defense installations "appears to have been negligible" because most had emerged power supplies.

Johnson said in a statement: "Many of the commission's initial recommendations are already being implemented by the power companies. This effort must be continued until we have so perfected our power systems that widespread power failures will be not only improbable but impossible."

In its report the FPC said flatly that "there can be no absolute assurance that outages (power failures) of the Nov. 9 magnitude will not recur." However, it said the possibility of a recurrence was remote and that steps could be taken to cut the odds.

Holy Office Revised

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI today ordered a broad revision of the Vatican's Holy Office, successor of the Inquisition. He changed its status and name, ended some of its secrecy and said persons brought before it must have the right of defense.

He reaffirmed its jurisdiction in safeguarding Roman Catholic doctrine, but put down rules that would make it more open to new opinion.

Pilot Sacrifices His Life To Save His Passengers

NORTH SALEM, N.Y. (AP) -Eastern Airlines pilot Charles J. White apparently sacrificed his life while helping to evacuate passengers after crash-landing his propeller-driven plane following a collision Saturday with a Trans World Airlines jet.

Three other persons lost their lives and 50 were injured. The two planes carried 112 persons.

Survivors and investigators alike praised the flying skill of White and of the TWA pilot, Capt. Thomas H. Carroll, who guided his craft — minus a 30-foot section of wing — to a safe landing at Kennedy International Airport.

Federal investigators are probing the cause of the crash.

The body of Capt. White, 42, a World War II bomber pilot, was found Sunday midway down the smashed and charred cabin of his four-engine Constellation.

Standing beside the wreckage, Oscar Bakke, regional director of the Federal Aviation Agency, said: "All I can say is it is fantastic that people walked away. The pilot must have done a wonderful job."

The planes collided about two miles above northeastern Westchester County, flying at a combined speed of perhaps 1,000 miles an hour. White was piloting his ship on a shuttle run from Boston to Newark, N.J. The TWA jet was en route nonstop to New York from San Francisco.

The investigation of the collision centered on establishing the altitude of the two planes.

The Eastern plane, carrying 54 persons, was assigned to a flight course of 10,000 feet, and the TWA jet to 11,000 feet.

Thirty-two persons remained hospitalized today, four of them in critical condition.

The only person injured aboard the TWA plane, carrying 58 persons was a stewardess who suffered a bloodied nose when she was slammed to the floor.

The dead are listed as Capt. White, of Rye, N.H., Dr. Joseph M. Wilkinson Jr. of Summit, N. J., a passenger, dead on arrival at Northern Westchester Hospital; Mrs. Donald Thibodeau, of Gloucester, Mass., died Sunday in Danbury Hospital; and Pvt. Dennis Flucker of Hoboken, N.J., whose body was found in the wreckage of the plane.

QUESTIONS THAT STIRRED A STORM

Two types of tests that have been given to school pupils under the auspices of the U. S. Office of Education recently have brought widespread protests from parents and from members of Congress.

OPPORTUNITIES SURVEY. One series of tests was given this autumn to first, third, sixth, ninth and twelfth grades, plus teachers, in about 5,300 schools -- nearly 1 of every 20. The tests were designed to carry out a survey, required by the Civil Rights Act, to show where children of minority groups are denied equal opportunities. Some schools refused to give the tests, after seeing questions on family, racial matters.

A questionnaire for pupils in the twelfth grade included: "Who is now acting as your father?" "Who is now acting as your mother?" "Where does most of the money come from that pays for your food, house and clothing?" "About how often last year did your mother or father attend parent-association meetings such as the P-TA?" "Think now of your close friends. How many of them are white?" "If you could have anyone you wanted for your close friends, how many would be white?" "If you could be in the school you wanted, how many of the students would you want to be white?" "If you could be in the school you wanted, how many of the teachers would you want to be white?" "How do you and your friends rate socially in this school?"

Questions for teachers included these: "When you attended (college) how many of the students were white?" "Did you say hello to students you didn't know?" "Have you ever attended any summer institutes or comparable training programs that offer special training in teaching or counseling the culturally disadvantaged?" "What will be your total annual salary from this school system this year? (Estimate supplements for extra services by using supplements from last year.)" "What kind of school do you prefer to work in, as far as ethnic composition is concerned?" "Which of the following policies on neighborhood elementary schools represents the best educational practice, in your estimation? (A) Neighborhood elementary schools should be maintained regardless of any racial imbalance produced. (B) Neighborhood elementary schools should be maintained, but where possible a device, such as reducing the grade span of schools, "pairing" schools, or another practice, should be used to promote racial balance. (C) The idea of neighborhood elementary schools can be abandoned without significant loss."

PERSONALITY TESTS. Other tests, given by researchers financed by grants from the U.S. Office of Education, cover a wide range. Some aim to outline psychological traits of children in certain types of schools. Some try to reflect the degree and effects of racial integration, or segregation, in a school district or neighborhood. Often the questions are of a highly personal nature, dealing with sex, religion, race, family relationships, income and possession. From a sample of the tests reported as a result of a special inquiry conducted by a subcommittee of the House Committee on Government Operations--

Ten questions from personality tests given to millions of high - school students: "True or False?--" "My sex life is satisfactory." "Evil spirits possess me at times." "I am very strongly attracted to members of my own sex." "I believe in a life hereafter." "I have been disappointed in love." "I dream frequently about things that are best kept to myself." "I am a special agent of God." "When a man is with a woman he is usually thinking about things related to her sex." "I read the Bible several times a week." "There is something wrong with my sex organs."

Ten questions from another test, where students were asked to fill in a blank space "with the first word that comes to mind," and were instructed to use only one word: "My childhood was_____." "My father_____me." "My _____sometimes gets me into trouble." "Secretly, I often dream of _____." "God is_____." "Men often_____women." "My father's chief fault is his_____." "My mother's chief fault is her _____." "_____makes me furious." "_____ is disgusting."

* * *

It is easy to criticize. Complaints always get attention.

Restraint, while often more desirable, usually attracts neither praise nor attention.

We are reminded of this because the pre-Christmas season is here now that December has arrived and the Thanksgiving holiday is safely behind us.

The effort to preserve the religious heritage of Christmas has both our sympathy and our support but some of the campaigns waged in its behalf have been cheap, tawdry and ineffective.

Last year at this time, Rep. Melvin R. Laird, Wisconsin Republican, unleased a blast at the post office department for putting out Christmas stamps not having a religious theme.

Laird maintained stoutly that the larger issue of separation of church and state was not involved in the stamp.

He may or may not be right about this.

But the post office is caught in the middle. If it chooses to let others put the religious emphasis in Christmas it is all right by us.

We recall a furor raised in one year about the UNESCO Christmas cards. Because none or few were offered with a religious theme, critics made the project appear to be a sort of international atheistic conspiracy -- perhaps even Communistic.

However little emphasis was placed by the UNESCO artists in earlier years on the religious background of Christmas in depicting holiday observance in foreign countries, this year's cards include a liberal number taking Christ's birthday for their theme.

We suspect that many of those who choose to seek publicity in complaining about the lack of religious themes in Christmas season mailings themselves select Santa Claus, Christmas tree and other non-religious or pagan symbols for their own Christmas cards, stickers and stamps.

Of the Christmas cards you received last year how many carried a religious message? Very few probably. Were you offended? Did you write your neighbors, friends relatives and congressman in protest?

You are a very unusual person if you did because if you are fair minded you must have known that no blasphemy or sacrilegious thoughts were intentionally conveyed to you in simple, well meaning Christmas messages.

We do not believe that the way to emphasize the real meaning of Christmas is to condemn in a loud voice all of those who simply wish us well on that day or greet us in the spirit of well wishers in a season that is particularly happy for children.

Social patterns cannot be effectively enforced with a bludgeon or by accusing those who greet you as pagans and unbelievers.

When the consumer buys a product on which the term "barbecue sauce" appears on the label, the product must taste and look like barbecue sauce was included. A proposed pork loin product with this type label was examined recently and found to be indistinguishable from pork loin not treated with such sauce. If such a term is used the pork loin must have the consistency, color and other characteristics ordinarily associated with barbecue sauce.

The shy young man, wed three months, met his doctor on the street and very unhappily reported that -- due to similar shyness on his bride's part -- theirs was still a marriage in name only. "Your mistake", the doctor advised after hearing the gloomy details of repeated ineptitudes, "is in waiting until bedtime to make advances. The thought of the approaching moment creates tension and impairs any chance of success. What you must do is take advantage of the very next time you both are in the mood." The young man thanked the doctor and hurried home to tell his bride of the heartening advice he'd received.

A week later, the doctor happened to meet the man again, and noticed that he was now smilingly self-possessed. "My advice worked, I take it?" he inquired.

The young man grinned. "Perfectly. The other night, we were having supper, and I reached for the salt -- so did she! Our hands touched . . . It was as if an electric current ran through us. I leaped to my feet, swept the dishes from the table, threw her down upon it, and there and then consummated our marriage!"

"That's wonderful. I'm pleased to hear things worked out so well," said the doctor, about to go on his way. The young man laid a hand upon his arm.

"There's just one hitch, tho, doctor," he said, uncomfortably.

NEW YORK AP -- It used to be easier in America to rob a bank in daylight than it was to get a decent cup of tea in a public place.

Things are looking up now. You can almost get a decent cup of tea in a bank while robbing it--banks do so much for one today.

One of the signs of maturity in a civilization is its ability to muster the service of a drinkable tea.

Although America is regarded as a youthful land, it is now 345 years from that distant day when the Pilgrims first stepped ashore here in 1620.

Ever since then we have tried to perfect a proper cup of tea, and it seems to me that we've almost got the problem licked.

Essentially, the solution is simple. You put tea leaves in a porcelain enclosure that has a spout. Then you pour absolutely boiling water over it, pause and recite from memory the counties of Ireland including the six still under British rule, and pour.

Then you sugar to taste, put in a little warm milk, and drink. You have all the liquid happiness that can be found under heaven.

Purists may insist upon refinements of this technique. They may say, for example, that good tea can only be made from free tea leaves, and they may criticize tea bags.

One of their bewhiskered jokes:

"We mailed some tea bags to our cousins in County Mayo and, not knowing what else to do with them, they hung them as decorations on their Christmas tree."

Actually, of course, all you need to do to make good tea is the mutual association of boiling water, tea leaves -- bagged or free -- and porcelain.

Waitresses now know this in Damascus, Hong Kong, Glasgow and Dubuque.

There is a variant known as instant tea made with cold water. It is not new. It was invented in Boston Harbor nearly two centuries ago by a number of unruly colonials dressed as Indians.

Tea is responsible for one of America's most firmly fixed habits.

During World War II our military tourists in Britain were annoyed because the English, even in the throes of battle, would pause at 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. to brew tea.

Our jeers have faded. Now no honest workingman in our own land can continue on the job without pauses at about those same hours for what we call "the coffee break."

A MOCKERY OF PUBLIC WELFARE

Not long ago, a leading pharmaceutical company published a photograph showing one of its physicians steadying a 34 inch stack of 8,000 pages of reports that were necessary to meet the requirements under new regulations applying to the issuance of a new drug. The new regulations are proving so burdensome that medical progress may be seriously retarded.

While the drug industry is struggling to move against a mountain of regulations and red tape rolling from the office of one government agency, another government agency, the Federal Power Commission presented natural gas producers with a "weighty" problem -- a questionaire weighing almost 10 pounds which must be filled out in quadruplicate. The questions and instructions were sent to 114 domestic natural gas producers. The questionaire is believed to be the most detailed and extensive ever drawn by a government agency. It will require of each company an estimated 17,000 man-hours of work by specialized accountants. The cost in salaries alone will be about $85,000 per company.

The Commission said it needed the information it was seeking to enable it to fix the prices for natural gas. No industry objects to necessary and reasonable regulation. But there is nothing reasonable about 8,000 page new drug applications and 10 pound questionaires.

PRICES ZOOM IN PARIS

U.S. Men can be well and comfortably dressed for practically any price they can afford to pay -- by they of modest means or able to shop at the finest shops. But even the more affluent class would be a bit stunned to see some of the prices being asked by the leading stores of certain foreign countries. As one example, an American fashion authority now in Europe reports: "At Pierre Cardin's, in Paris, one rack held his good-looking linen suits, with vests, in shades of navy to white to cocoa and deep blue. They are priced about $360 . In another corner, there were cashmere coats cut like riding jackets with belts in the back, about $650."

A new shop opened in the heart of the little town, with no sign of any sort on its awning, door or window, the nearest things to identification being the large clock in the window. A gentleman whose watch had stopped happened to be passing by, and he went inside and asked if they would repair it.

"I'm sorry," said the clerk, "But this is not a watch-repair shop. This is a branch of the hospital in the next block. All we do here is perform hemorrhoid operations."

The man begged the clerk's pardon and started to leave, then turned with a puzzled frown. "Then what's the significance of the clock in the window? he asked.

"Well," said the clerk, "what else could we put in the window?"

WHY OUR WINGS ARE MOLTING

The airplane has been with us for nearly 62 years. Commercial flight has been around for well over a generation. The continents are now only hours apart and man is but a few short years from landing on the moon.

Nevertheless, the overwhelmingly majority of Americans have never gone further from the surface of Mother Earth than an elevator will take them.

To find out why this is so and to try to make a dent in this vast untapped population of kiwis, an airline (American) has been conducting "flightseeing" tours of New York City for $5.95 and asking passengers to fill out a brief questionaire.

Fully 40 per cent of the first 1,105 persons who answered the questions had never set foot in a flying machine. Surprisingly, of these only 11 per cent said it was fear that had kept them bound to the ground.

Another 11 per cent gave expense as their reason; 23 per cent said they had never had the opportunity before; and 4 per cent said they simply had no place to go.

The rest -- 51 per cent -- could think of "no particular reason" why they had never flown.

Who was it said man is a creature of insatiable curiosity?

H. L. Hunt Says

TWO-PARTY SYSTEM

Speaking at Akron University on October 21, 1964, President Johnson said: "The responsible leaders of both parties, and I believe in the two-party system, think first of the good of the country." The president later firmly stated the necessity of a staunch opposition party to achieve good government.

Republicans have been slow in perfecting a workable recovery from the debacle of the 1964 election. Their Senate leader, a man I have long admired and one of the most able men in the U. S. Senate, Everett Dirksen (R-Ill.), has until recently acted as spokesman in the Senate for the President. Congressman Gerald Ford (R-Mich.) acted like a green hand.

Republicans must start acting like statesmen. Senators Hruska (R-Neb.), Tower (R-Tex.), and Thurmond (R-S. C.), should begin expounding a recognizable policy. In the House, Laird (R-Wisc.) and Gross (R-Iowa), are among the many constructive members. Robert Taft, Jr., whose loss of the Senate seat in Ohio can be regarded as a fluke, should expound Bob Taft's ideals. Bud Wilkinson (R-Okla.) if he continues in public life, is destined for greatness.

Communist and fascist dictatorships, with their ever-present "mandate from the people," are one-party systems, and suffrage is a meaningless formality.

In the U. S., some states have tried "one - party" government. New England, as a region of "one - party" states, fared poorly while losing important industries. The Old South, with largely "one-party" government, has been ignored in the big political panorama, although it enjoyed a near monopoly in senatorial and congressional committee appointments.

Along with the President, I believe in the two-party system.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Most urgent personnel problem facing LBJ is right inside the White House --namely, what to do about McGeorge Bundy, who has been offered a big job but actually doesn't want to leave; and what to do about Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara, who has been participating more and more in problems outside the Pentagon.

The President is reported inclined to replace Bundy with McNamara making him assistant president and the second most powerful man in the USA. This raises two significant questions:

1. Will McNamara, as coordinator of foreign affairs inside the White House, supersede Dean Rusk, Secretary of State?

2. Will military thinking dominate our foreign affairs, supposedly directed by civilians?

The answer to the first is that Dean Rusk doesn't seem to mind having Bob McNamara barge into foreign policy. They get along well together; even cooperate in making mistakes together. At the end of their joint meeting in Honolulu, Nov. 20, 1963, they issued a formal statement promising that 300 U.S. troops would leave South Viet Nam Dec. 3,1964, and that 1,000 more would depart before the end of 1964. This, they said, would leave 15,500 American troops in South Viet Nam.

Today is Dec. 6, 1965, and the 300 troops that were to leave by Dec. 3, 1964, have not yet departed. Instead of 15,500 U.S. troops in South Viet Nam, we have sent in more than 150,000, with approximately 30,000 more on the way.

Dean Rusk has not yet joined his friend, the Secretary of Defense, in the latter's recent statement, "We have stopped losing the war," which came as a surprise to many Americans because, judging from Pentagon statements, we were winning the war.

But, in any event, no sparks would fly around the White House if the President superimposed Bob McNamara, in effect, over Dean Rusk as an assistant president.

MILITARY ADVICE PREVAILS

The answer to problem number two is that military thinking has already dominated our supposedly civilian foreign policy for some time.

Specifically, and quite recently, we have had the former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Maxwell Taylor, serving as ambassador in South Viet Nam, and it was the Joint Chiefs of Staff who really sold Johnson on the policy of bombing North Viet Nam -- a policy which Secretary McNamara now tacitly admits has been a failure.

It will be recalled that on the night of Feb. 6 and the early morning of Feb. 7, when a hastily called White House conference decided to bomb North Viet Nam, Secretary of State Rusk was in Florida, ill, and George Ball, the acting Secretary of State, argued against the bombing. He knew that Soviet Premier Kosygin had just arrived in Hanoi, capital of North Viet Nam, and while he did not know specifically that Kosygin was in our corner, the State Department suspected it.

Later developments have shown that one day before we started bombing North Viet Nam, Kosygin had actually urged the Chinese to help end the war in Viet Nam, or as the Chinese put it, "serve as a pawn for U.S. imperialism."

However, on that fateful night, acting Secretary of State Ball was overwhelmed by the arguments of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Their advice prevailed.

Therefore Bob McNamara's transfer to the White House would really make no change in the fact that the military dominate U.S. foreign policy today.

BUNDY'S ROLE

The one man who has spoken out against military domination in closed door conferences is the White House adviser who now may be leaving, McGeorge Bundy. In the last few months he has been joined by Arthur Goldberg, U. S. ambassador to the United Nations, and by Vice President Humphrey.

Bundy is a former dean of Harvard, the son of an assistant secretary of state in the Hoover administration, and once wrote a book with elder statesman Henry L. Stimson on Stimson's experiences as twice secretary of war and once secretary of state. Stimson knew the perils of atomic war and passed on these fears to his young collaborator.

Bundy cannot speak out publicly as can McNamara. He fights his battles in the privacy of the White House. In various high level conferences, however, Bundy has differed with military advisers, sometimes also with the President.

Despite this, Bundy has been close to the President. Johnson likes him and has leaned on him.

Whereas some of the old Kennedy staff in the White House were aloof from LBJ, Bundy has been loyal and devoted. It is not true that he has remained only because he cherished an ambition to be secretary of state, nor that he wants to leave the White House now. He doesn't.

The President has been a bit irked, first because he thinks Bundy wants to leave, second because the Ford Foundation leaked word that it had offered Bundy $75,000.

There is nothing in the world that Lyndon likes less than news leaks. And he may well think that Bundy has leaked this column to me. I hasten to point that, having been out of the United States and in the hospital myself for some time, I have not seen McGeorge Bundy for four months.

Originally I though Bundy was not the best influence on Lyndon Johnson. It was Lyndon Johnson who convinced me otherwise. It would be too bad to have Bundy depart. However, it would not materially change American policy. That policy has long been dominated by the military and it will so continue.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Soviets Devising New Comintern World HDQS To Revive Successful "Innocent" United Fronts of 1930s.

New York: -- This bit of the past will explain much of the future:

Back in February 1934, Communist shock troops invaded a mass labor rally in Madison Square Garden. The Stalinists stormed in shouting "Unite and Fight" -- meaning join in a united front to fight a common enemy. The crowd refused to unite. The Communists chose to fight.

It was the biggest battle ever staged at the Garden. There was much blood, much bitterness, no unity.

A year later, at the meeting of the Seventh Congress of the Comintern (inside jargon for Communist International) as easier soft-sell policy was developed. Gently, persuasively, Soviet propagandists attempted to woo labor and the left into a "united front."

In the U. S. the Communist Party rolled up some 80,000 members. Scores of other thousands rallied to it.

Then in 1943 the Comintern was dissolved. The cold war cracked the united front. It died.

Now, away off in the distance, soon to be heard ever louder and louder, the Communist propgandists and activists are calling on labor and the slivered left to join them in a new mass "united front." The Soviet drive awaits only the creation of another centralized Communist International organization to push it into the U. S. and all free lands.

Now comes word that a new Communist International organization will be launched in the spring. It will be complete with a professional executive committee to handle day-to-day problems.

This word of a new Comintern comes from a truly self-effacing man, Louis Nichols, who is so esteemed by some of America's top newsmen that they would go swiftly to their typewriters to report the coming visit of Mao to Johnson City, if "Louis" said it were so.

Mr. Nichols, who has been closely observing the burgeoning Comintern, was for many years an assistant to the director of the FBI and thus one of the three men who ran the Bureau. He is a literate man, as familiar with Friedrich Nietzsche and Karl Marx as with John Dillinger and Al Capone.

Having labored in the vaguely unfinancial vineyards of the government for two decades, he now is executive vice president of Schenley Industries, Inc. He is not, however, far from the geysering fonts.

Recently he marshaled a series of official Communist actions and speeches to party comrades by the Soviet's little know theoreticians. The latter were particularly concentrated in the period from July 25 to August 21, 1965, when "the Communists celebrated with special emphasis the 30th anniversary of their Seventh World Congress, the last and most important Comintern meeting prior to its dissolution. . .This 1965 celebration became a springboard for launching a return to the 'united front' concept."

For the newcomers to report of what is heard on the left, it must be explained that the "united front" tactic is the offering by the Communist world apparatus of aid in any fight. This could be on traffic congestion, corruption, housing, sewers, political candidacies -- and for world peace and democracy, Soviet style.

Tactically, it means burying revolutionary zeal and patter and infiltrating cultural, liberal, political and labor groups wherever possible. And let the conservatives not believe they're free from such enticements either.

If the labor and political and liberal leaders recognize and rebuff the Communists and reject their offer of money and manpower, the Comintern-ites do not simply go away. They launch new innocent fronts as a lure.

One of the forces the Communists will invade will be the labor movement.

"The veteran leadership of labor has been through the fire," said Mr. Nichols to an old friend the other day. "They have withstood the raids from the left on memberships and treasuries. They have been tested.

"However, there is a need for the younger leaders, the younger rank and file, to make themselves knowledgeable before they are forced to go through the same heartbreaking, and backbreaking, fights which their movement underwent three decades ago."

Those of us who watch little-noted events abroad see Mr. Nichols borne out. The powerful British Labor movement, the Trades Union Congress, on Oct. 27 voted to send a fraternal delegation to the Soviet's all trade union convention.

The German labor movement, overriding the objections of its president, Ludwig Rosenberg, has voted for cultural and labor exchanges with Russian labor.

The French Socialist and Communist Parties, which have powerful labor movements, are in a political popular front.

United front-ism of the thirties is crowding in on the U.S. It will be fascinating to see whether it does as well with the beat generation as it did with the lost generation.

Dexter Defeats Kennett, Takes SEMO Tournament

Poplar Bluff Wins Over Bulldogs

DEXTER -- First seeded Kennett was upended Saturday night by the third seeded Dexter Bearcats 70 to 54 in the Championship game of the SEMO Conference Tournament.

Poplar Bluff defeated Sikeston 44 to 33 in the consolation game.

The Bearcats blasted out to a 43 to 22 first-half lead. Their lead was never threatened.

The Bearcats offensive power was distributed among five players who scored in double figures.

Paving the way was Larry Bailey with 17 and Rick Mooney with 15. David Guethle and Larry Layton each scored 11 and Bill Ringer pumped in 10.

Larry Mullins was the pace-setter for Kennett with 13.

The Bulldogs leading scorer was McKinley Lambert with 11 points. Richard Montgomery sank 10. No other Bulldogs hit in the double figure column.

Busby paced the Mules with 19. Sikeston stayed within three of Poplar Bluff until the end of the first half play, 20 to 17.

The Mules made their big move in the third period moving out to a 34 to 24 lead.

Busby scored nine of his 19 points in the Mules third period move.

Bulldog Coach Gene Dawson said the Bulldog's weren't ready for the tough Mule defense.

The Bulldogs record is now one win and two defeats. They play host to the Cape Central Tigers Friday night at the Armory.

"It's a sin;" "It's unhealthy;" "It should be taxed"—and taxed it was to the tune of $30. These cries resounded about the first bathtub in Cincinnati, December, 1842. Looking like a watertight coffin; this huge, 1750 lb., 7 ft. mahogany box was lined with sheet metal. All types of bathtubs can be seen at the Harold Warp Pioneer Village in south central Nebraska.

Unitas Downed By 500 Pounds

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Chicago's fierce Bears racked up Johnny Unitas, roughed up the Baltimore Colts, and opened up the Western Division race for a down-to-the-wire finish.

It happened in the National Football League's big one at Baltimore Sunday. After the brawl was over, it was Bears 13, Colts 0. But the crusher for Baltimore came earlier, toward the end of the first half when some 500 pounds of brawn chopped down Unitas.

Bear defensive tackles Stan Jones and Earl Leggett caught Unitas in a pincer movement that knocked the superstar quarterback out of the game, out of the rest of the season, and mostly likely out of the league title playoff -- if the Colts make it.

A few hours after the game, Unitas underwent surgery for torn ligament in his right knee. He definitely will be sidelined for Baltimore's two remaining season games, and the chances are very slight he would be ready for a possible match with Cleveland's Eastern champion Browns for the championship Jan. 2.

Despite the loss in the penalty-filled, fist - swinging affair with the Bears, the Colts still lead in the West with a 9-2-1 record. But the Green Bay Packers are right behind at 9-3 after beating the Minnesota Vikings 24-19 and have a showdown coming with the Colts at Baltimore next Sunday, when capable but seldom-tested Gary Cuozzo will fill in for Unitas.

On the final weekend, the Colts play the Rams at Los Angeles and the Packers meet the 49ers at San Francisco.

Meanwhile, the surging Bears still are in it at 8-4. They've lost only once in their last nine games -- 26-21 to Baltimore four weeks ago. The Bears take on the 49ers in Chicago next week, then finish at home against the Vikings.

Elsewhere in the NFL -- the Browns, with the Eastern title already wrapped up, came back in the final period for a 24-16 victory over the Washington Redskins; rookie Tucker Frederickson scored three touchdowns as the New York Giants took over sole possession of second on the East, whipping the Pittsburgh Steelers 35-10; the Los Angeles Rams buried the St. Louis Cardinals 27-3; the 49ers turned back the Detroit Lions 17-14 with two fourth-quarter touchdowns; and the Dallas Cowboys blocked two field-goal tries in edging the Philadelphia Eagles 21-19.

Rookie flash Gale Sayers cashed in on one of the Bears' many chances with a 61-yard touchdown sprint and two field goals by Roger Leclerc rounded out the scoring at Baltimore. The Colts never got as far as the Bears' 20.

It was ragged and rough football. There were 12 fumbles and three interceptions, penalties totaling 202 yards, and several fights.

Zeke Bratkowski and Bill Anderson combined for a 27-yard scoring pass play in the third period that proved decisive for the Packers against the Vikings, who dropped their fourth straight. Green Bay also was hit by a quarterback injury, with Bart Starr going out early with jammed fingers of his right hand.

Frank Ryan's 14-yard touchdown pass put Cleveland ahead of Washington, and Jim Brown iced it with a four-yard scoring burst. It was the 20th TD this year for the great Cleveland fullback, tying the single-season NFL record set last year by Baltimore's Lenny Moore.

Brown, the league's scoring and rushing leader, gained 141 yards for a 12-game total of 1,450.

The Giants, now 6-6, climbed ahead of St. Louis and Washington in the race for the East's runner-up spot with their rout of the fumbling Steelers. Frederickson scored on runs of 13 and three yards, and on a pass from Earl Morrall.

Jets Sign McAdams

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Owner Sonny Werblin of the New York Jets, who outfits his players with green uniforms and his draft choices with greenbacks, has pulled off another coup in the battle for player talent between the two professional football leagues by signing Oklahoma linebacker Carl McAdams.

McAdams, the Jets' No. 3 choice in the American Football League draft and a first-round pick of the National League's St. Louis Cardinals, was an All-America selection and one of the most prized prospects in the country.

It was the second time the Jets had won a tug-of-war for St. Louis' No. 1 draft choice--New York outbid the Cardinals for quarterback Joe Namath last year--and represented the first player picked on the first three rounds of the NFL draft who had been lured into the American League.

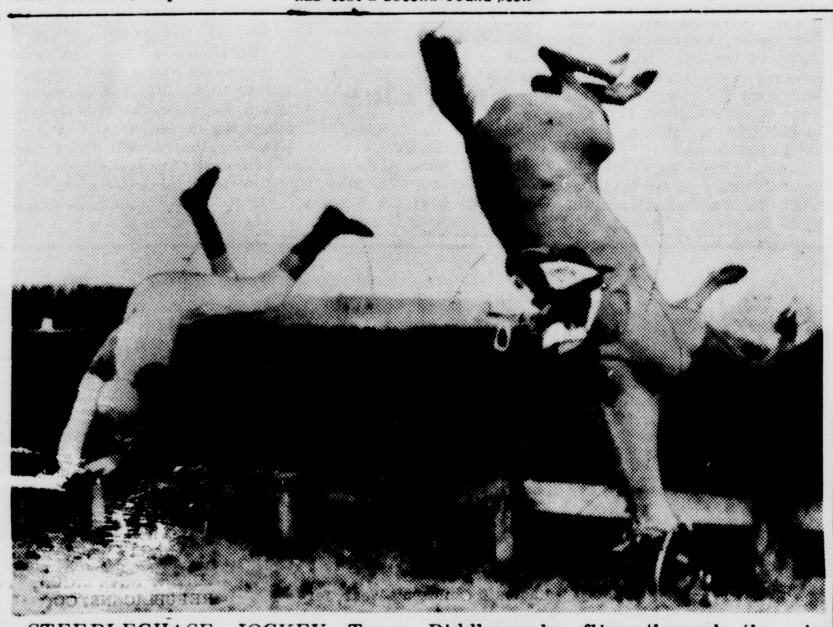

McAdams' loss was the first the NFL has suffered after signing nine of its 16 first-round draft choices. The AFL has signed five of its 10 first-round selections and lost one.

The American League also has lost a second-round pick--Baltimore getting Kentucky tackle Sam Ball in a battle with the Jets.

The AFL also signed two high future picks from the 1964 draft --San Diego State and Gary Garrison going with San Diego and Northeastern's Bob Cappadonna going with Boston during the weekend. San Francisco was the loser both times.

Garrison, a No. 1 pick of the Chargers, went on the NFL's sixth round to Philadelphia but the Eagles traded his rights to the 49ers. Cappadonna was the Patriots' No. 3 future and was selected by the 49ers on the 10th round.

Cards Slipping, Lemm Says, 'Pitiful'

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS AP -- Be it on the football field or in the office, the St. Louis Cardinals let everyone slip out of their grasp Sunday.

First, Roman Gabriel eluded them and then Carl Adams got away as the Cardinals extended their losing streak to four in the National Football League and two in the signature race with the American Football League.

Quarterback Gabriel of Los Angeles of the NFL slithered away from St. Louis linemen time after time to complete passes that carried the Rams to a 27-3 victory over the Cardinals.

Cardinal Coach Wally Lemm called his club's performance "pitiful."

But the Cardinal front office performed no better in New York, where it lost a No. 1 draft choice to the Jets on the AFL for the second straight year. First, Joe Namath, now McAdams, a linebacker from Oklahoma.

Club owners Charles and William Bidwill had "no comment" concerning the battle of the signature. But Lemm had plenty to say about the struggle for the football.

"There's more to it than injuries," Lemm said of his club, which has lost six of seven games and has fallen out of second place in the eastern division.

"We haven't got any injuries on offense and we're not moving the ball worth a darn. The fans are yelling for razzle dazzle plays, but we've got to play steady football."

The defense didn't get off lightly, either.

"I could see Gabriel with his size and strength getting away from one guy," he said, "but he was getting away from three guys."

Garbiel, 6-foot-3, 225 pounds, completed at least two long yardage passes with Cardinals hanging on him and he scrambled away from a blitz to complete a 59-yard scoring pass to Billy Truax for a 7-3 lead.

He later hit Dick Bass for 16 yards and a touchdown and finished with 17 completions in 31 attempts for 203 yards.

As the injured Bill Munsen's replacement, Gabriel now has guided the Rams past the Green Bay Packers and the Cardinals.

And while Gabriel riddled the Cardinal defense, his own defenders were holding St. Louis without a touchdown for the first time since 1962. The Cardinals, who gained only 166 total yards, offered only one serious scoring threat, marching to the Los Angeles seven, and that ended when Merlin Olsen recovered Charley Johnson's fumble and rambled 59 yards.

OFF THE BLOCK—Catcher Bob Uecker keeps in shape during the off-season in the back yard of his Wisconsin home. Uecker went to the Philadelphia Phillies from the St. Louis Cardinals in a six-man trade.

APPLE FOR YOUR TEACHER

Remember the thrilling spelling bees
When you were only nine?
And teacher smiled and said to you,
"Go to the head of the line."
How proud you were no one could know,
Though you remember still,
The ones who called you "teacher's pet,"
Old Jim, and John, and Will.
The teacher. . .you did not forget,
Her kindness meant so much;
She helped to mold your character,
With firm. . .but gentle touch.
She longs to see you once again,
So hurry now and call,
Invite her out to share with you,
October's Greenhouse Ball.
What memories you could exchange,
What happy smiles, and tears,
How satisfied her heart would be
To hear of your good years.
So take a teacher to the ball,
She never shall forget,
You wanted her to share the greatest
Greenhouse party yet.

Peace Demonstrators Once Were Afloat

EDITOR'S NOTE -- Peace demonstrators march today in the United States -- but 50 years ago they floated, aboard Henry Ford's chartered ship. Here's a vivid anniversary flashback to that remarkable, much-ridiculed voyage intended to stop World War I, and how some surviving participants remember it.

NEW YORK AP -- "We're going to try to get the boys out of the trenches by Christmas."

So saying, Henry Ford sailed off for Europe with 90 other idealists just 50 years ago-- on Dec. 4, 1915 -- in the Scandinavian - American liner Oscar II. His ambitious goal was to stop World War I.

Now, at a time when protesters against U.S. military involvement in Viet Nam march across the land, few members of the Ford peace mission still are alive.

They rejected any suggestion of a parallel between their peace campaign and the drive to get the United States out of Viet Nam.

Ford and his followers hoped to end World War I before the United States could be pulled into it.

Their chosen instrument was something they called the Neutral Conference for Continuous Mediation which they would set up in Stockholm in neutral Sweden.

Unlike the get-out-of-Viet Nam agitators, they had no quarrel with the nation's foreign policy.

But they had hopes that a private initiative might speed the day when peace negotiations would halt the carnage in Europe.

They were largely ridiculed by the press of America and the world and almost wholly ignored by the belligerents.

"Great war ends Christmas Day, Ford to stop it" read a typically satirical headline in the New York Tribune.

The New York World called the voyage of the Oscar II "an impossible effort to establish an inopportune peace."

The crusading do-gooders struggled on for 14 fruitless months.

Finally, on Feb. 7, 1917, Ford washed his hands of the project, picked up a bill for $465,000 and remarked:

"Well, we got a million dollars worth of advertising out of it, and a hell of a lot of experience."

A survivor of the little band is Louis Lochner, a peace-monger of the day who later became a Pulitzer Prize-winning Associated Press foreign correspondent.

Interviewed by telephone at his home in Fair Haven, N. J., Lochner, now nearly 79, said cheerfully:

"Well, the peace ship was a stunt but the welfare of humanity was in our thoughts. We felt that somebody ought to do something to end the war, and we did our best.

"Maybe it all came to nothing in the end, but who knows? Perhaps the Neutral Conference for Continuous Mediation germinated the idea which grew long after into the United Nations.

"The Viet Nam protests? There is no comparison between them and the Ford peace mission. The circumstances were so completely different."

Another survivor is Earl W. Tucker, 75, a retired banker of Syracuse, N. Y. He was one of 36 university students--29 boys and seven girls -- who comprised the young intellectual group aboard the Oscar II.

"The Ford expedition," said Tucker, "was not in any way the type of so-called peace demonstration we are seeing in connection with Viet Nam today, and had nothing in common with it.

"The present day demonstrations are aimed at criticizing our government's policy and attempting to bring pressure to bear to get it changed.

"The delegates on the Ford expedition were desperately anxious to see a cease-fire arranged in World War I before our military involvement became necessary.

"But when the United States later declared war and the die was cast, many of us who took part in this expedition joined the armed services of our country to do what we could to help defeat those who were hoping to conquer and enslave the free people of the world."

For example, Tucker said, his cabin mate on the Oscar II, William H. Draper Jr., went on to a military career and became a general in the U.S. Army.

The conception of a neutral mediation conference was a consensus of a number of groups with visionary plans for stopping the war.

One main group was headed by Rosika Schwimmer, a Hungarian pacifist and feminist, and another by David Starr Jordan and Lochner.

Discussing the war during an interview, Ford remarked:

"I'd give all my money--and all my life -- to stop it."

Talks with Madame Schwimmer and Lochner quickly followed and Ford told Lochner:

"We want to do something dramatic. We'll charter a ship!"

Ford invited a cross-section of national leaders in to come along, but many who praised his objection found reasons for sending their regrets.

Thomas Alva Edison, a fellow inventor, went down to the pier in Hoboken to see Ford off and the motor magnate offered him a million dollars to join the company. Edison just smiled and shook his head.

Acceptors included S. S. McClure, publisher of the magazine which bore his name; Gov. Louis B. Hanna of North Dakota, and Judge Ben Lindsey of Denver, a nationally famous liberal and reformer.

Elmer Davis, later to be one of the most noted of radio's newscasters, was one of the 54 newsmen assigned to the ship.

The Oscar II had hardly entered the Atlantic when Ford came down with a cold which confined him to his cabin for the rest of the trip.

After a 15-day voyage, the ship arrived at Christiania, Norway. Four days later Ford left for Detroit, explaining that he had promised his wife he wouldn't be gone long.

The peace crusaders journeyed on to Stockholm, Copenhagen and Holland. In The Hague they made public a document outlining their principles, many of which were incorporated decades later in the charter of the United Nations.

The permanent council of mediation was established in Stockholm, with delegates from Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland, Switzerland and the United States. Most of the peace ship people then returned to America.

Lochner, who had remained on the scene, was recalled to America by Ford in January 1917. He saw President Woodrow Wilson twice and conferred with the motor magnate several times.

Within a few weeks, Wilson made his historic speech urging the belligerents to reach a "peace without victory."

Soon after, Ford told Lochner the private crusade in Europe should stop. He apparently felt that Wilson was doing as much for peace as could be expected of America, wither governmentally or privately.

"He withdraw support from his peace mission under the influence of his business associates," said Lochner. "Ford was a man of genius, but like many another genius exceedingly unreliable."

Author Mark Sullivan, writing of the peace mission in the publication "Our Times," declared:

"After its failure, dying down to an echo of gigantic and exhausted laughter, it deprived every other peace movement in the country of force and conviction."

On April 6, 1917, the United States declared war ON Germany.

Time Is Running Out

By General Frederick Coutts

Without doubt there are those who for some time have been calculating the number of days to Christmas.

Possibly harassed department store managers have been studying their graphs which, based on comparative figures, indicate when they may expect the peak of the shopping rush. Maybe a dad or mother is even now working out how much time he or she has left to complete the purchase of family presents. And some small boy, his mind hardly on the current class lesson, is trying to remember how many days there are in the month, and on his fingers, to total up how long it will be before he can don the space suit he has ordered from you-know-who.

Perhaps those warning notices have already begun to appear in your local paper. Thirty more shopping days to Christmas. Twenty more. . .Fifteen . . . Ten. . .Five. . .

It seems that even with this happiest of holiday seasons there is an inescapable time factor. No evangelist could exhort us more earnestly than do our main street stores to remember that what we would buy we must buy quickly. There is a last or final shopping day after which the present which has not been purchased must remain unpurchased. The Christmas card which has not been sent must remain unsent. The deadline once passed, what has not been done by way of Christmas preparations must remain forever undone. There is an element of judgment even with our shopping. All our desire to remember some long-forgotten friend is in vain if we don't think of him until Christmas Day is half done. We've had it by then -- and so has he!

We take too casual a view of this season of the year if we suppose that its happiness rests upon the uncertain hope that a good time will be had by all, for mainfestly that is not true. the virtue of Christmas as a high festival lies in the fact that it speaks of what God has done in visiting and redeeming His people, and our happiness lies in acknowledging Him whom God has sent to be our Lord and Savior. For our attitude to Jesus will reveal whether or not we have begun to understand why there is a Christmas at all.

Among the Scriptures appointed by the Church to be read during the Advent season is one in which the Apostle Paul maintains that there were certain opinions or judgments which did not bother him at all. "For my part, if I am called to account by you or by any human court of judgment, it does not matter to me in the least. Why, I do not even pass judgment on myself . . . My judge is the Lord. . .For he will bring to light what darkness hides, and disclose men's inward motives" (NEB).

One of these things which did not bother Paul was what other men might think of him. And it was just as well he was somewhat indifferent on this point, for he was called a good many hard things in his time.

Neither was he troubled about maintaining a high opinion of himself. He was too much of a realist to be eaten up by a sense of his own importance. But, he went on, "He that judgeth me is the Lord." That is to say, he was concerned about how he stood in his relationship to Jesus.

So must we all be; for He whose coming we remember at this time of the year is not just a Baby about whom we sing sentimental lullabies for a few days in December and then forget for the rest of the year. It is by Him we are judged, and that is one of the soberer truths of which this season reminds us. Like the number of shopping days to Christmas which bid us make up our mind what we want to buy while we still have time, we have to make up our mind about Jesus while yet -- in the old evangelical phrase -- we are in time and out of eternity. There is a deadline with faith as well as with the shopping list.

Those whose memories go back like mine to the first world war may recall one of Studdert Kennedy's poems in which he imagines a Cockney soldier, whose life had been far from blameless, dreaming that he was in the other world and facing the Judge who knows all. Said he:

Any day by day and year by year
My life came back to me.
I see'd just what I were, and all
I'd 'ad the chance to be.
"I see'd just what I were."
That is just what Jesus does to us. In His presence we see ourselves as we truly are.

This is what happened when He came as the Babe of Bethlehem.

At the news of One born to be King, Herod's first concern was for the safety of his own throne. That mattered to him more than anything else in the world. To preserve it he was prepared for butchery. The coming of Jesus threw up in harsh relief his own savage selfishness.

The religious leaders whom Herod consulted showed themselves indifferent to the coming of the King; for though they knew their sacred Scriptures by heart, they never dreamed for one moment that what they were quoting was actually happening under their own eyes.

Shepherds and wise men came to worship; and, when they found Him who was born to be King, they laid before Him their gifts. All these men rose or fell by their attitude toward Jesus.

This is what a wise old man named Simeon said would happen. Speaking to Mary he foretold that "this child is set for the fall and rising again of many in Israel." My only comment would be, "Not only 'in Israel.' "

Judgment of this kind can be somewhat merciless. Yet we can only blame ourselves when we ask for it. Those of us who know our Dickens will recall how Mrs. Skewton, mother of the second Mrs. Dombey, tried to preserve the appearance of youth in old age, but one day she collapsed. Then, runs the story, "They took her to pieces in very shame and put the little that was real of her on a bed."

"The little that was real"--that could be said of more of us than poor Mrs. Skewton.

Ah, Lord, before Thou dost become our Judge, persuade us to accept Thee as Saviour!

Federal Reserve Baffles Johnson

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is finally baffled.

He put the heat on business and labor to prevent inflation by keeping prices and wages down. But William McChesney Martin Jr. had his own ideas on how to prevent inflation, and Johnson couldn't do a thing with him.

Martin, just a few days short of 59, is a conservative, tight-money man and chairman of the Federal Reserve Board which under law is set up to operate independently of the President and Congress.

Martin's seven - man board thought one way to put a brake on inflation was to raise interest rates, which was the opposite of Johnson's thinking. He feared higher interest would put a brake on the booming economy.

Sunday night the board, ignoring Johnson, went ahead, boosted the rates.

The man whose foresight in all this turned out best was Johnson's fellow - Texan and Democrat, Rep. Wright Patman, chairman of the House Banking Committee.

Last June, Martin made a speech at Columbia University, saying there were "disquieting similarities" between the present prosperity and the boom that preceded the 1929 market crash and the depression of the 1930s.

The stock market promptly took a dive. Many brokers thought Martin's speech was a factor in that. Patman said Martin had parted company with the Johnson administration and should step out, letting the President appoint his own chairman.

(The President appoints the board members, with Senate approval, but he can't fire them. They have fixed terms. Martin's is 14 years. He was first appointed by President Harry S. Truman, was reappointed by President John F. Kennedy.)

Johnson's secretary of the Treasury, Henry H. Fowler, took a sunnier view than Patman. He said he didn't see anything in Martin's words foretelling action by the board to raise interest rates.

Johnson talked with Martin, said he saw no reason for "gloom or doom." But months passed and Johnson must have sensed or learned what the board had in mind, for Sunday the Washington Post said that last week Johnson phoned Martin from his ranch, asking him down for a weekend talk.

The Post said that Martin said he couldn't go until Monday and then on Friday, Martin called a Reserve Board meeting which Sunday night ordered an increase from 4 to 4.5 per cent in the discount rate banks pay when they borrow money from the Federal Reserve.

This would immediately affect major borrowers like corporations. The rates would also affect mortgage borrowing.

They probably will not directly affect consumers' interest rates but interest rates affect everyone, directly or indirectly.

There doesn't seem much he can do about it. Patman said Johnson should demand Martin's resignation and promised an investigation of Martin's actions by his committee.

Plans are still indefinite for the house-to-house canvass. However, it is expected to be held sometime during December.

Catholics To Join In Prayer

CONWAY -- Roman Catholics throughout the diocese of Springfield - Cape Girardeau will unite with other Catholics for three days of prayer marking the end of the second Vatican Council, Bishop Ignatius J. Strecker, bishop of the diocese announces.

The three-year-old council will end formally Wednesday, the Feast of the Immaculate Conception and a holy day of obligation for Catholics.

Pope Paul VI has ordered that every parish in the Catholic Church hold a tridum--three days-- of solemn prayer ending on the eve of the holy day, so that the entire Catholic world will be united in prayer at the conclusion of the Council.

The Pope has urged Catholics "to beg for a new Pentecost that will renew, through the Holy Spirit, the face of the spouse of Christ and of the times."

Bishop Strecker in a pastoral letter sent from Rome to be read at all the masses in the diocese Sunday said:

"We urge our beloved Religious and Faithful to participate to these Masses and receive the Holy Eucharist, Secondly, the Litany of the Blessed Virgin Mary and the Memorare are to be recited after each Mass celebrated on these days. Finally, we ask our priests and Religious daily to make a Holy Hour before the Blessed Sacrament and our faithful to pray the Rosary as part of their family prayers in their homes."

Tentative Approval Given For Recreational Loan

BLOOMFIELD -- Tentative approval of loan insurance for a loan of $115,000 was given Friday by the Farmers Home Administration to Crowley's Ridge Recreational Center, Inc., of Bloomfield, Senator Stuart Symington, Senator Edward V. Long and Congressman Paul C. Jones announced.

The loan is for the conversion of 92 acres of land from agriculture to recreational facilities for the use of Stoddard County residents. Plans for the recreational complex call for a golf course, swimming pool, four acre lake with picnicking and boating, tennis courts and clubhouse.

In a move that started February 1st by members of the Bloomfield Chamber of Commerce to obtain better recreational facilities for residents of Stoddard County a corporation was formed in order to make application to the Federal Government for financial aid and assistance. Two weeks later a special committee was named by the Chamber of Commerce president Fred Koenig, naming D. L. Bess as general chairman, J. C. Newcomer secretary of the overall committee, Elvis Mooney chairman of the swimming pool and tennis court committee and Jim Spain as chairman of the golf course committee.

In April the board of directors voted to start a charter membership drive, within one week 68 county residents joined the organization, by May 9th the membership enrollment had risen to 99 members.

A request for the funds was then submitted to the Farmers Home Administration in the following form $35,000 for a nine hole golf course, $2,500 for tennis courts, $30,000 for the club house and $35,000 for the swimming pool and bath house. The request also included the estimated cost of operating the center and amortization of the federal loan for the first year.

The list of towns that will be served by the center was submitted, they included Advance, Dudley, Essex, Gray Ridge, Bell City, Puxico and Bernie.

Officers of the Corporation are D. L. Bess, president; Ronnie Cox and Henry Cain Jr., vice presidents; J. C. Newcomer, secretary and John Davis treasurer.

The executive committee members of the corporation are Ronnie Cox, Henry Cain, John Davis, Marvin Smith, J. C. Newcomer, Alvin Corbin and D. L. Bess.

The Board of Directors are (in addition to the above-named officers) Jesse Bennett, Koss Blomeyer, Elvis Mooney, James Spain, Joe Welborn, Richard Hart, Bill Morgan, Jack Bess and Norman Coburn.

Final approval by the Farmers Home Administration is awaiting the completion of plans by the Crowley's Ridge Recreational Center.

Upon final approval of the loan according to Mr. D. L. Bess the next step in securing the recreational facilities will be to advertise for bids. Another requirement is to have 125 members. At present there are 114. Anyone interested in membership may contact any of the officers, members of the committee or board of directors.

Not contemplating any difficulties in the bidding all goes well, construction will start in early spring of next year.

$125,000 Damage In Friday Storm

CARUTHERSVILLE -- A general survey showed this week that damage resulting from last Friday night's freak wind storm totaled more than $125,000 in Pemiscot county but there were no reports of any serious injuries in this area.

The storm, which hit this area at about 8 p.m., was part of an unruly weather pattern that covered northern Arkansas, eastern Missouri and Illinois and left a wide-spread trail of damage in the three state area, as well as parts of Tennessee and Kentucky.

The heaviest property damage reported in the county was at the Steele airport where four light aircraft and a hangar were destroyed and several other plans and two more hangars were heavily damaged by the storm.

The manager of the airport, which is operated by the city of Steele, estimated the damage there will run between $75,000 and $100,000.

The 485-foot community television antenna in Caruthersville was also toppled by the heavy winds.

Owned by Bootheel Video, Inc., and valued at about $35,000, the tower had just been completed earlier this fall and the cable television system it was to serve had not yet gone into operation.

One witness who saw the huge steel tower fall said a cable apparently snapped first and the tower swayed several times before collapsing.

The tower was located in a field between the levee and the Mississippi River just west of the Powell Ferry road.

At about the same time, the wind knocked out four large plate glass windows in the show room of George Cook Motor Co., which is located on Highway 84 just across from the Farr Boulevard intersection.

Just down the road the wind caused heavy damage to the front of the Clevidence Machine Shop. A television antenna and two metal awnings were blown off the Casanova Lounge and Restaurant. A television antenna on the Tennessee Service Station at the intersection of Highway 84 and Fair Boulevard.

An employe at Tennessee Service Station said the wind sounded like a huge diesel engine at about the time the heavy damage was done in that area.

A large revolving sign in the parking lot of the Kroger Store at Ward Avenue near 7th Street was blown down and destroyed at about the same time.

An empty grain bin on a farm south of Caruthersville owned by Harold Jones was blown over by the winds.

Several trees and large tree limbs were blown down throughout the entire county but other reports of damage were relatively mild.

Mayor L. R. Bain of Hayti said his community must have been fortunate for Tuesday he stated there had been no reports of any major damage from the storm reach him. The power failure was the only real noticeable effect of the storm, he said.

The two major power sources in this area, Ark-Mo. Power Company and the Pemiscot-Dunklin Electric Co-operative, reported heavy damage and some service interruptions resulting from the storm.

Kenneth Sellers, Ark-Mo. manager in Caruthersville, said there were two power failures Friday night which effected the communities of Steele, Hayti, Portageville and Caruthersville. The both of them totaled little more than 20 minutes, Sellers said.

The damage was high, however, and rather rare, he stated. Five double-pole structures carrying 110,000 volt lines were blown down by the storm. Three of them were between Hayti and Campbell and two between Blytheville and Steele. This is an oddity, he pointed out, since he has not in 17 years known of the main transmission lines from both the north and south to be knocked out.

Luckily, he said, the 33,000 volt lines were not damaged and local lines were transferred to these for their source of power. Had the lower voltage lines been downed then the situation would have been critical, Sellers stated.

Ark-Mo crews were called out immediately and worked until noon Sunday to get all the lines back in service. Service to customers, however, was not interupted for more than the twenty minutes Friday night.

Subscribers of the PDEC were not as fortunate, or at least some of them. Service to about 75 users were not restored until late Saturday. It was reported that about 75 poles were downed by the storm.

Manager Ingram, who lives with his family in a trailer at the airport, said he was there when the storm hit. He said he did not see a twister but from the sound of the storm and the way the debris was going in different directions he feels it must have been a tornado that hit.

The Ingram's trailer was also damaged but he said no one was injured.

The planes that were destroyed were upended and others were damaged when the one hangar was completely demolished. Two other hangars were seriously damaged.

Several other airplanes were heavily damaged by the storm. It was reported that most of them were probably covered by insurance. It was not determined immediately if the hangars were insured.

Work got underway early Saturday to clear the wreckage of the television tower and prepare for erection of a new tower. By Sunday night the tower arrived by trailer truck from Fort Worth, Texas and crews started work Monday erecting the structure.

A spokesman for Video Towers, Inc., who put the tower up, said they expect to have it back in place by the middle of this week. The Texas firm had the first tower in place on Sept. 7.

Bootheel Video said the mishap is not expected to create any delay in starting their service of cable television for subscribers in Caruthersville and Hayti. The first hook-ups are expected to be put in homes next week with service ready immediately.

SAME NAME, SAME SPEED

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) -- It was family day in municipal court when a father and his daughter entered pleas of guilty and were fined $15 each on charges of speeding 60 miles per hour in a 45-mile zone. Their arrests took place at the same location, just 20 minutes apart.

December Expected To Be Wet

PORTAGEVILLE -- The below normal rainfall pattern that carried through November is expected to be reversed during December

Low pressure centers are expected to develop in the Southern Plains and move through the lower Mississippi Valley, transporting moisture from the Gulf of Mexico into the Bootheel. The frequency and amounts of precipitation will total greater than usual. In the past, wet Decembers have produced totals ranging from near four to as much as six and one half inches. Rain is likely on 12 to 15 days during the month.

The majority of high pressure systems affecting the Mid-South will enter the Pacific Coast and cross the Rockies rather than plunging southward from the cold polar regions. Consequently, most of our colder periods will result from penetration of the edges of cold outbreaks. If these should coincide with the northward advance of moisture from the Gulf, we could see some freezing rain or snow. Five day and daily forecasts will give advance notice of such a development. When you plan to travel during the month, check weather reports and forecasts for cities ahead of your route to avoid icy conditions that could cause delay or traffic hazards.

Normal rainfall for Missouri Bootheel cities: Caruthersville, 4.03 inches; Fisk, 3.45 inches; New Madrid, 3.93 inches; Poplar Bluff, 3.40 inches; Dexter, 3.62 inches; Morehouse, 3.62 inches; Parma 3.67 inches; and Sikeston, 3.71 inches.

Temperature averages will run normal for the month. Most of the wet weather can be expected to come as rain. With field work already curtailed by rain in late November, the region is not likely to see enough open weather in December to allow soils to firm up.

Even with normal rainfall, the region generally collects two to three inches more rain than is lost by evaporation.

This gives a good chance to carry adequate soil moisture through the winter into next spring.

E. B. Nace, University of Missouri area farm management agent, suggests that with abundant moisture indicated, combined with numerous changes from cold to mild temperatures, consideration should be given to moisture content of stored grain. Condensation in bins can add moisture that eventually works into the grain. Drying by forced air, especially unheated air, will want to be scheduled during cloudy periods, particularly early in the morning and late in the day.

The driest air moves into the Bootheel on northerly winds when cold air from the north penetrates deeply into the nation's midsection. Relative humidity is low from mid forenoon through mid afternoon under sunny conditions. Drying with unheated air will be effective on most days when the temperature is 12 degrees or more above the dew point.

Bootheel radio stations equipped with the Mid-South agricultural weather teletypewriter circuit have temperature and dew point forecasts and reports available for broadcast.

A MODERN ELECTRONIC ENGINE PERFORMANCE ANALYSIS
IS LIKE A DOCTOR'S X-RAY

When you go to your Doctor for a checkup, he usually insists on an X-ray, to determine the exact condition of the vital organs that control body processes.
An electronic diagnosis of your engine and its electrical system is like an X-ray in that it determines the exact condition of each part and component that controls car performance.
Many vital engine parts are out of sight. It is impossible, for example, to see the action of the distributor points under actual working conditions. However, with our modern Rotunda Electronic Diagnosis Equipment, the exact condition of all such hidden parts is clearly indicated on the oscilloscope screen. Nothing is left to guesswork — nothing is overlooked.
Let our trained diagnosis technicians give you a complete report on every phase of your engine's performance. It will pay big dividends in helping you to avoid future trouble.

Open House At Illmo Library

ILLMO--On Sunday the Riverside Regional library will be host to an open house from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. at its Illmo Service Center branch.

The library was moved into the Hartner Memorial building, was formerly the Rialto Theatre. The building was given by the Hartner family to the Illmo Development corporation for use as a library.

The building has been remodeled.

The building is 33 feet wide and 70 feet deep, and provides room for a children's section, reading and study area, a casual corner for adult patrons, and a large area to shelve the 10,000 volumes of the library's collection.

The library was established in April of 1957 as the first branch of the regional library which serves Scott, Cape Girardeau and Perry Counties.

The Riverside Regional Library was organized in 1955, when the voters of the three counties approved the library proposal in April.

Similar service centers were established in Benton in May of 1957. In July of the same year the city of Perryville began to contract for library services with the Riverside regional library, and voted to merge its library with the county in spring of this year.

A fourth center was opened at Altenburg in the fall of 1963.

The library at Perryville has moved to a new building, the former Legion Hall. Plans are complete for an open house there Dec. 12.

Cotton Trading Continues Slow

HATYI -- Cotton trading continued slow in Southeast Missouri.

There was limited demand for low middling and lower qualities at prices netting farmers from 75 cents to $1.25 over corresponding loan rates.

Below grades were traded at prices ranging from 15 to 18 cents per pound.

Most other qualities were tendered to the CCC loan.

Interest Rate On CCC Loans Raised

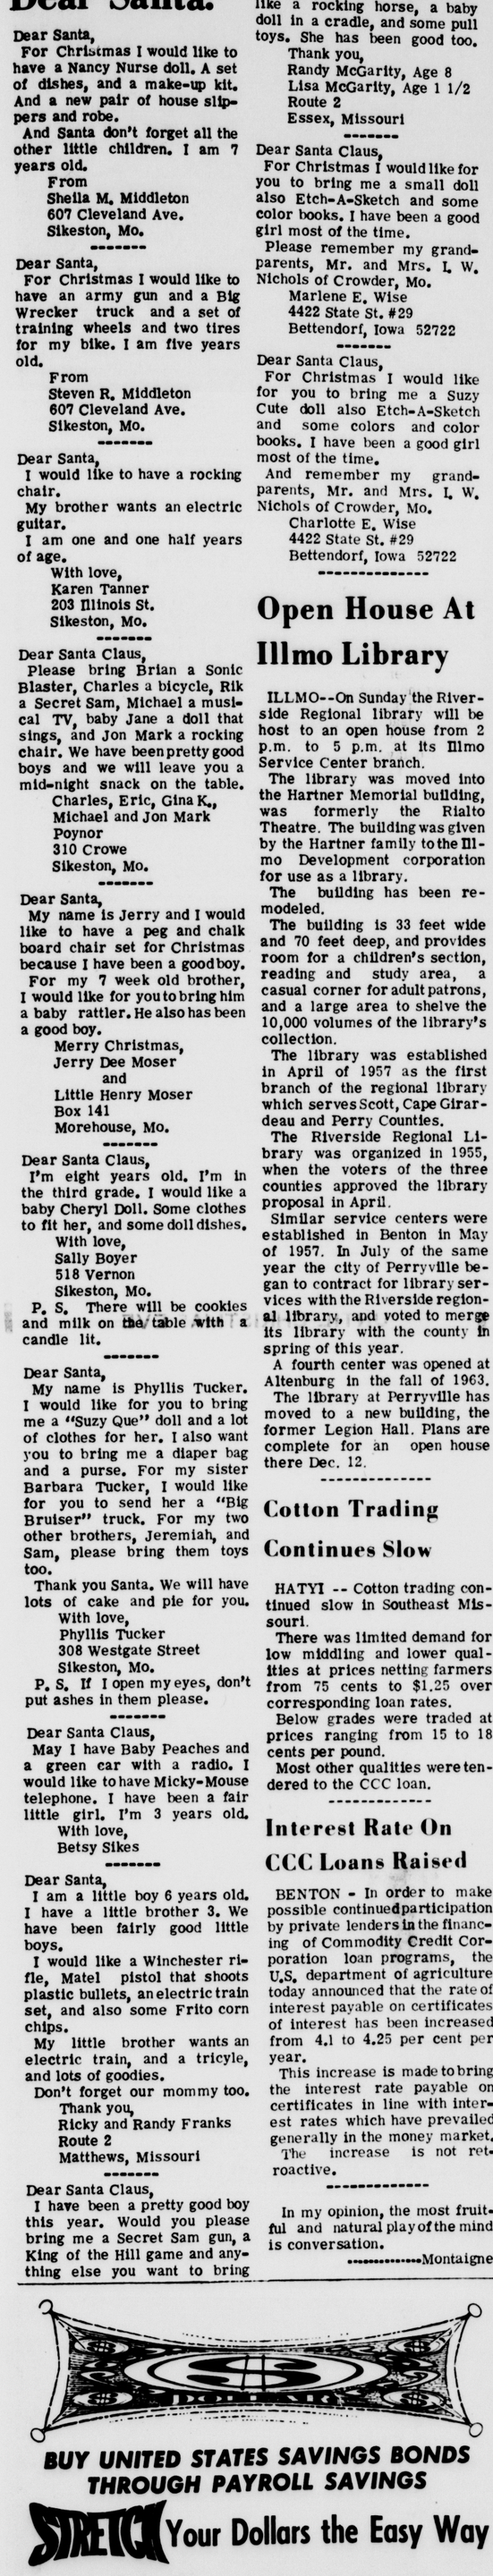

BENTON - In order to make possible continued participation by private lenders in the financing of Commodity Credit Corporation loan programs, the U.S. department of agriculture today announced that the rate of interest payable on certificates of interest has been increased from 4.1 to 4.25 per cent per year.

This increase is made to bring the interest rate payable on certificates in line with interest rates which have prevailed generally in the money market.

The increase is not retroactive.

In my opinion, the most fruitful and natural play of the mind is conversation.

Elderly Dunklin Couple Robbed Of $1,090 Savings

KENNETT -- Mr. and Mrs. Tom Martin, an elderly couple who live on Kennett, route three west of 19 ditch, were robbed of $1,090 by three men who entered their home under false pretense Thursday afternoon.

Martin reported that the trio came to their door at 2:50 p.m. and reported they were from the "light company and were there to check the electrical outlets."

Two of the men began to inspect wiring in the front room while one went into a back bedroom. Mrs. Martin, after about five minutes, suggested to her husband that he see what the man in the bedroom was doing. When Martin walked in he saw his savings, which the burglar had removed from a lard bucket kept in the bedroom closet, poured out on the bed.

"You're not taking our money, are you?" Martin said. And the man replied, "I'm not taking all of it."

The men hurriedly picked up the money and left in a light-colored pickup truck. At no time did the men show a gun.

The Martins reported the robbery and described the burglars to the highway patrol, Kennett city police and authorities from the Dunklin County sheriff's office.

One was reported to be about 40, weighed 200 pounds, was dark complexioned with black hair. Another was estimated to be 30 years-of-age, weighing 180 pounds, 5 feet 9 inches in height, with blond hair. The third man was about 45, 6 feet tall, weighed 155 pounds and had dark hair.

No trace of the burglars or their identity had been made.

Farmers In St. Francis Basin Vote For Injunction

DUDLEY -- The Association for St. Francis River Control met Thursday night and voted to file an injunction against the U.S. Corps of Engineers at Memphis, Tenn., as soon as they can raise sufficient funds to carry through the injunction.

About two-thirds of the money needed has been donated by farmers, landowners, banks and lending agencies in the area, John Bowie of Dudley, treasurer, reports.

The last meeting of the association was held on October 6. Previously, the association had listed its grievances and requested that U.S. Corps of Engineers correct the situation that had flooded their cropland below Wappapello Dam last September.

The Corps of Engineers reviewed their plans for improving the St. Francis River drainage and promised to answer the requests of the association and present their plan for correcting the flooding within 45 days.

According to Virgil Low of Kennett, the Dunklin County representative of the association, 40 persons were present at the meeting Thursday in the Dudley School. John Bowie had called the Memphis office of the Corps of Engineers just before the meeting and was informed that he would have to go to "higher authorities", presumably in Washington, D. C., for any information.

Landowners and tenants, who live or own farms in the flooded lowlands, have felt the pinch of the flooding in more ways than just the loss of their 1965 crops, Low reported.

"The dam was built to protect property along the St. Francis River from flooding. It has done just the opposite. Government land above the dam floodgate has reaped all the benefits. Rather than let that upper land flood, they open the control gate and let the surplus water cover our lowland farms," Low said.

"Now we are having difficulty in getting loans refinanced because of the floor risk," he declared. "That land is rich and is the best risk in Southeast Missouri if it were not for the floods caused by the way the Corps of Engineers control the gates at Wappapello Dam."

Forms for reporting damages resulting from the September floods were circulated among those present at Thursday night's meeting. Reports were that individual farmers suffered from $1,500 to $50,000 worth of crop loss. Landowners, with considerable property in the area, may claim as much as $300,000 worth of damage to their cropland.

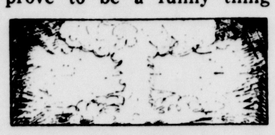

H. G. Townsend of the real estate department of the Corps of Engineers, who has been in the area purchasing right-of-way for improvements on the St. Francis River from Chalk Bluff to the dam, was present at the meeting but said he had no authority to speak in behalf of the Corps of Engineers.

The association will hold another meeting on Thursday, Jan. 6. The place was not decided but members were told they would be notified and information about the meeting would be published in area newspapers.

Virgil Low said that any Dunklin County landowner or tenant of cropland in the area flooded by the overflow from Wappapello Dam who was not present at the Dudley meeting Thursday night, may secure damage report forms at Hoover's Trailway Service Station in Campbell.

Officers and members of the Flood Control committee include: Brad Jolly of Fisk, chairman; Kenneth Menton of Fisk, vice-chairman; John Bowie of Dudley, secretary - treasurer; Virgil Low of Kennett, Dunklin Co. representative; E. B. Bowie of Dudley, North Stoddard Co. representative; Sherman Webb of Broseley, Butler Co. representative; and Ben Snow, Clay Co., Ark. representative.

Jerry Tries Harder

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Because he is the No. 2 Van Dyke brother, Jerry has to try a little harder. And with a starring vehicle like "My Mother, the Car," he has to try really hard.

It has been uphill all the way for "My Mother, the Car." It was one of the most ill-received shows of the season, critics carping at the premise of a car radio speaking to a young husband with the voice of his late mother. Ratings have been only fair, and the series is a precarious bet for a second season.

Jerry Van Dyke is quite naturally a realist, as you might expect of a man who is trying to get ahead in show business when his brother is Dick Van Dyke. With accustomed candor, Jerry was analyzing the series' ills on the set one day.

"We're still feeling our way," he observed. "We've tried broad comedy, aiming at our kid audience, which seems to be considerable. We've also tried family situations to please the adults. I just work here."

Jerry stared at the 1928 auto which houses the voice of his mother — actually the voice of Ann Sothern.

"You know, I could learn to hate that thing," he muttered. "It's tough talking to a car. I mean, when you're talking to an inanimate object, you're forced to animinate yourself to keep the scene alive. I've done everything but stand on my head.

"Another difficult thing is shooting with one camera, like a movie. I've played before live audiences all my life; I thrive on the reaction of the crowd to pace my comedy. I'd much prefer a three-camera show before an audience, as Dick does. I think he's better under those conditions than he is in movies. You can see him respond to the audience."

Win or lose, Jerry figures the show has been good for him, proving that he can carry a program on his own.

"And if it's canceled," he shrugged, "well, I've still got my banjo."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr. Charles Blanton
Sikeston Standard
Sikeston, Missouri

R. C. Martin says

This article could easily be interpretated as unpatriotic by the insincere mind. Nevertheless, it is the duty and responsibility of every American who loves his Country; who cherishes freedom, and who is devoted to its cause, to voice his concern.

The time has come for all peace loving Americans to ask themselves the question, why are we in war in Vietnam?

I think heretofore the American people have been willing to trust the thinking of the political and the military minds to guide this Nation's war policies and efforts to a sensible conclusion.

We are being told by those who are entrusted with the security and general welfare of this Nation, that we are fighting a war to save the freedom of the Vietnamese people; to keep communism from spreading throughout Southeast Asia. Technically, the way I see it, we are fighting a war simply to stop communism from destroying the freedom of all men.

Now if the ideology of communism is so socialistic and dictatorial in essence, so distructive to the freedoms of freedom loving people of this world, as we are being told by so many of the so called high calibered thinkers in our government. Let all good and honest men rise up and openly against it now.

What I am so deeply concerned about, and what I want every reader of this article to ask himself is why are the precious Americans, along with the others, dying in the snaky, tangled jungle, and muddy, sloppy, rice paddies in Vietnam? Of which many of these paddies are turning red with the blood of hundreds of sons, fathers, and husbands from our own beloved America.

These people, I am told, are not really concerned whether they are communist or capitalist.

The alarming question is why is there so little being done in this Country about stopping communism? Why are they allowed to travel at will, with no questions asked, through our fair cities and up and down our beautiful country side plotting with every step a communist take-over of our lovely land?

Now the time has come for all freedom loving Americans to ask themselves, ask their neighbors, ask their editors, ask their Congressmen and Senators why so little effort is being made at home to stop this communist take-over. Have they not boldly stated, they would bury us?

Ask why it is that almost every time the Supreme Court rules on matters pretaining to communism that it rules in their favor, ASK, ASK.

Sincerely,
R. C. Martin

CARE LAUNCHES FOOD APPEAL

CARE, the overseas relief agency, today launched a $6,000,000 campaign to provide food for hungry people in 22 countries overseas.

Miss Mary Ann Vooren, regional CARE director, outlined CARE's feeding task for 1966. More than 4,492,000 individuals will receive food sent by American donors, at a cost of $1 per package. Packages contain milk powder, flour, corn meal, beans, rolled wheat and vegetable oils, averaging 27 lbs. each.

Miss Van Vooren stated that most Americans are unaware of CARE "partnership programs," where host governments pay most distribution costs. Such programs, coupled with the American-supported Food Crusade, will bring CARE food to a total of 37,000,000 people next year.

"Since 90% of that number will be fed through CARE programs supported by their own governments," she pointed out, "the effectiveness of CARE abroad is fairly self-evident. It is also a fine illustration of the self help concept."

U.S. Food for Peace commodities are the mainstay of CARE's food aid, although food products donated by private firms are often included, such as canned soups and meats. Buying, packing and delivery costs are balanced so that each donated dollar provides one food package. Packages are presented as gifts of the American people, along with the name of the specific donor, except in Vietnam where the procedure has been suspended during the war emergency. Deliveries there are made as gifts from Americans, but without individual names.

Donors may specify the countries in which they wish their contributions to be used. Countries include: Afghanistan, British Honduras, Chile, Colombia, Cyprus, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Greece, Haiti, Hong Kong, India, Iran, Jordan, Korea, Macau, Pakistan, Poland, Sierra Leone, Turkey, Tunisia, Vietnam and Yugoslavia.

Contributions should be mailed to CARE Food Crusade, Box 2266, Kansas City, Mo., 64142.

Goulet Wants To Act

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Sometimes you wonder about actors. Take a fellow like Robert Goulet. The robust native of Lawrence, Mass., can pull down a few hundred thousand a year merely exercising his singing voice in night clubs, concerts and television. So why would he chuck it for the precariousness of a spy television series.

"For two reasons," he explained during a brief stopover here. "One is that a series will give me a chance to stay in one place for six months, something I haven't been able to do for the past three years.

"The other reason is that a television series might convince movie producers that I can act. They may be in doubt after my first two pictures."

His films were "Honeymoon Hotel" and "I'd Rather Be Rich." To put it kindly, they did not fulfill the promise he displayed as Lancelot with Richard Burton and Julie Andrews in "Camelot" on Broadway.

Goulet has canceled a flock of munificent singing dates to begin production in Munich next week on "Blue Light," which will debut on ABC Jan. 12. He reported that his take per week will be $5,000, out of which he must pay his manager and company expenses. Thus he'll end up with just about what he could earn in one night in Las Vegas.

"To afford the show, I had to build up a backlog of resources," Goulet remarked. "That's why I just did a tour of college concerts.

"If the show should survive for a few years, I'll be the winner in the long run."

Its chances? "Blue Light" will start with one or two strikes against it. For one thing, series that debut in midseason seldom succeed. For another, spies are profuse on television this year.

The story line of "Blue Light" — that's Goulet's code name — has him portraying an Allied agent in Nazi Germany during the last World War. The first half dozen shows will be filmed in actual locales of Munich, Berchtesgaden and other Hitler haunts. Then the company returns to Hollywood for more shooting.

United Fund Near Goal

KENNETT -- The United Fund Campaign is within $500 of the 1965 goal of $20,000, according to the latest report of J. E. Ditto, chairman of the board of directors. The campaign would go over the top, Ditto delcares, with just a little boost by several more contributors.

The funds will be distributed between seven community agencies who direct and care for a variety of activities which are voluntarily supported -- Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, U. S. O., Dunklin Co. Assn. for Retarded Children, Cerebral Palsy, Salvation Army and American Red Cross.

Among contributors who have donated to the campaign this past week are:

Jo Ann Dees, Jewell M. Brooks, Walter Starnes, Riggs Supply Co. employes, Thomas Crunk, Tony W. Crawford, Jack Hancock, Leroy French, Lawson Brents, Farmers Flying Service, Inc., Roth's Department Store employes, Standard Oil Co., Needham E. Holly and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pelts.

Burglars Strike 2 Pemiscot Places

CARUTHERSVILLE -- Burglars broke into two Pemiscot County firms Wednesday night and escaped with food, money and tools, the Pemiscot County Shriff's office said today.

The thieves broke a lock from the rear door of Darnell's Cafe at Braggadocio and took some hamburger meat, pots, pans and about $20 and seven cartons of cigarettes from a cigarette machine. The burglary was discovered about 6:30 Thursday morning.

The same night someone broke into a small shop operated by Eugene Kellum in the Denton community and escaped with an electric welder and some money from a vending machine.

Listen for growth. Be an inquisitive listener. Ask questions. Everyone has something to say which will help you to grow.

FIRST PLACE WINNER in the general Christmas division of the float contest in Hayti was this one entered by the Hayti Rotary club. There were eight floats, seven high school bands and other mobile and marching units in the parade. Santa Claus, riding on one of the Hayti fire trucks in the event, had to be transferred to a float when a fire broke out at a dwelling in the city and the truck had to leave the parade to put out the blaze.

WINNERS IN the Miss Christmas Belle and Miss Jingle Belle contest in Hayti were center, Beth Andrews with little Gail Clodfelter, first place; Donna Richardson with little Rhonda Kaye Turnage, right, second place, and Linday Gurley with little Jeanette Moore, third place.

Dear Editor:

I like to ask your favor and would appreciate it very much if you can give some help.

I am very anxious to go to America for study, for I am interested in American life, how Americans live at home, how they think, what the wear, the kind of music they listen to, the books they read, the hobbies they pursue, etc., etc. And I hope to realize about various things of America rightly.

There are three ways to go to America for study, but I have only.

It is some one of the America that becomes my sponsor. And I want to live as a member of the family one term.

Though it is very selfish request of mine I have the strong will to do so.

Therefore after much thinking, I fell to have impudence to request to you.

Will you please find out one who will be willing to be my sponsor.

If there aren't any one you can recommend me, then may I ask you to insert a little note about it in your paper? I would appreciate it just the name. I wish you all the luck in the world in your promising editor career.

Yours very truly

Gentlemen of the Press:

Communism means to commune with one anqther, and give a meaning of comradship. This was a great word concocted by the Russians, and the American public through the newspapers have been gullible enough to swallow.

Now all these people in these so called Communist countries are just common slaves. These people must do as they are told.

They work where the government tells them to and at a bare living wage. They cannot change jobs without consent. They cannot own a business, not even a barbershop. Shortage of food and money keeps them always in want.

These satellite countries did not go Communist willingly. The Russian soldiers occupied them and forced them to do so by gun point, and a great many were murdered for objecting to same.

They have no way to change these conditions. They are helpless. Their money is worthless outside of their own country.

The people cannot communicate with one another without the government's permission and then spies are always present, and if anyone gets up and shouts against the government, he may come up missing.

Now, you gentlemen of the press could easily do something for this great country of ours, by using the name "Slaveryism" when writing about "Communism." This would help educate our youth, and you would not have so many misinformed and misguided youths as has been shown lately. They do not know what Communism is really like. They think it sounds good for all of us. If they knew the real truth, they might feel as I do, that if it takes about 30 years to win in South Vietnam, we should continue the war.

It appears that our ninety per cent of the people in the slave countries are opposed to Communism, and the majority of university students want to come to the United States.

All these people have developed wonderful neck mucles because when talking privately with one another in hotels and restaurants, they first turn their heads around to see who might be listening.

I am an American that appreciates living in the greatest country on earth. We may need you newspaper writers to help keep it that way.

What a terrible blow it would be to the Russians if all the newspapers in the U. S. A. would use only the name Slaveryism, which it really is, instead of Communism. Yes, Gentlemen, use the name Slaveryism; it will be the biggest blow yet to Communism.

The Russian line, or propaganda for "Communism" is of course that all are working for the common good -- a share and share alike process. It is not. The people are all slaves to the State. The individual has no right to decision of preference as to what he does.

The English and the French, thru the Magna Carta and the French Revolution helped the common man make his first great steps to freedom. We have all been thinking this had achieved an impetus that could not be stopped. The Russians have stopped it. They have not only tightened the yoke of slavery on their many millions, but have imposed it on the peoples of their satellite countries. It is a great step backwards in the history of men's fight for freedom. You newspaper men have the power to change it.

Respectfully submitted,
George Saint George

Answers Your Problems

Dear Readers: I received tremendous response to the letter from the mother of the 15-year-old mental patient who committed her son to a state mental hospital. She wrote, "I know patients used to be treated like animals but I thought conditions had been improved." Her signature was "Faith Shattered."

I asked my readers if this letter could have come from THEIR state. Here is a sampling of the replies:

California: I am a former patient of a state mental hospital in California. It might surprise you but I am taking the side of the state. If that boy tried to escape twice, the third time he might have twisted the iron leg off a bed and split a nurse's head open.

I was put into solitary when I imagined the attendants were conspiring to kill me and hide my body.

I threw a full tray of food at a nurse and I was placed in a room with only a mattress on the floor. Now that I am well I understand things better. The employees of the California state hospital system deserve medals for their bravery and their kindness. -- D. B. L.

North Carolina: I, too, had a teen-age son who was committed to a state mental hospital. I thought the attendants were mistreating him because he cried so much. I know now he only wanted to be taken home where he would get his own way. Today the boy is 21 and self-supporting. Our state hospital did for him what I, his mother, could never have done. -- APPRECIATIVE.

Michigan: I have nothing but good to report about the Traverse City state hospital. I was a patient there for over a year. The food was good, the rooms were clean and the attendants, doctors and nurses were kind and thoughtful. I now hold a responsible position, drive my own car and am living proof that the mentally ill can be rehabilitated. -- T. C. R.

North Dakota: I am a 16-year-old boy who has spent eight months in the state hospital. I just read the letter from the mother who complained about the way they treated her son. What did she expect? Color TV in every room maybe? A lot of kids who are mentally ill get away with murder at home. This doesn't help them get well. I know because it was part of my problem. They are teaching me here to be an adult, and I am grateful. -- EX PSYCHO

New York: I was a patient in a New York state mental hospital and I swear to God a person couldn't get better treatment if he went to the fanciest private hospital in the country. -- RECOVERED

Illinois: My sister is a patient at the Illinois Psychiatric Institute. We hated to commit her because we had heard state hospitals were snake pits. I can report that she has been treated beautifully and has shown remarkable improvement.

I thank the Lord we live in Illinois. -- PROUD

Connecticut: "Faith Shattered" could not have written from our state. We operate two residential treatment programs for children up to 16, plus many child guidance clinics. Children who are able to attend classes do so in a fine building opened in 1962. We have excellent recreational facilities complete with swimming pool. Connecticut does very well by her disturbed children and she hopes to do even better. -- SEN. ABRAHAM RIBICOFF

Indiana: After living next door to a 15-year-old homicidal boy whose parents took him out of a mental hospital because they didn't treat him like royalty, I have a word to say to all mothers of disturbed children:

I heard the rifle shot that killed the boy's grandmother. I saw them carry the body out of the house. I recall how his mother kept saying he'd "outgrow his meanness."

Our late president was assassinated by a man whose mother didn't think he needed psychiatric care either and the whole world has suffered the consequences. -- INDIANA

Hearnes Calls For Conference On Problems

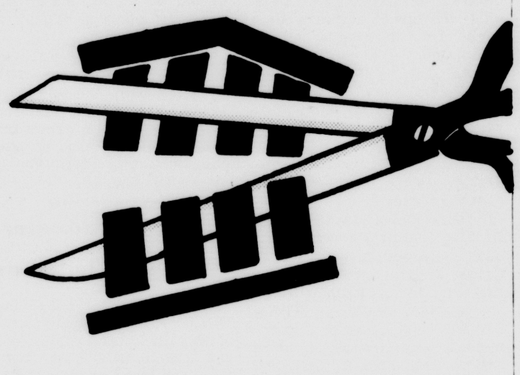

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. AP -- Gov. Warren E. Hearns has called a conference this week to discuss the money problems connected with the state's mental health program.

He will meet with Jack Stapleton Jr., president of the Missouri Association for Mental Health and publisher of the Dunlin Democrat in Kennett; Dr. George A. Ulett, director of mental diseases, leaders of the House and Senate appropriations committees and others.

Stapleton said Friday that the State Division of Mental Diseases faces a major crisis and its program will be bogged down if the legislature does not provide money in 1966 for increasing the salaries of professional staff members.

Additional money must be appropriated or nine regional clinics, one to be built in Sikeston, cannot be opened on schedule, Stapleton said.

About 20 million Americans receive Social Security benefits.

Cut the college problem down to size

It's too big, too important to let slide.

The problem: Colleges are facing greatly increased enrollments every year.

But they may not be able to afford the facilities, equipment and qualified teachers to train these potential leaders.

That makes it our problem.

We urgently need leaders to plan wise use of our national resources, manpower and human skills.

A loss in leadership would be a threat to our economy. It would affect jobs, opportunities, living standards.

Keep our leaders coming, by helping colleges meet the cost of educating them. Give to the college of your choice.

College is America's best friend

Today in U.S. History

Today is Monday, Dec. 6, the 340th day of 1965. There are 25 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1492, Christopher Columbus discovered the island of Haiti and named it Hispaniola.

On this date:

In 1876, Rutherford B. Hayes was elected president of the United States by a special commission after an Electroal College dispute left Samuel J. Tilden one short of the required majority vote.

In 1889, the president of the Confederacy, Jefferson Davis, died.

In 1938, Nazi Germany and France signed a nonaggression pact.

In 1941, President Franklin Roosevelt made a personal appeal for peace to Emperor Hirohito of Japan.

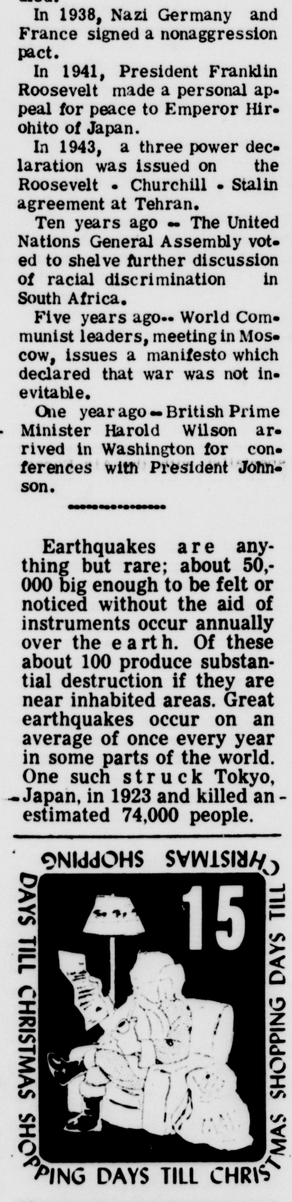

In 1943, a three power declaration was issued on the Roosevelt • Churchill • Stalin agreement at Tehran.

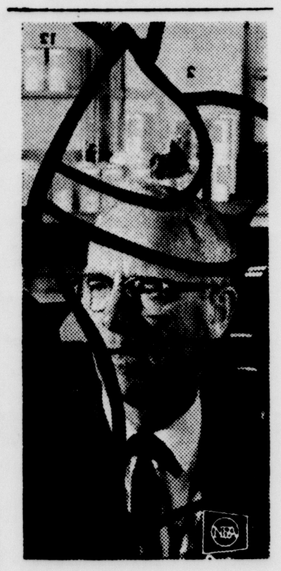

Ten years ago — The United Nations General Assembly voted to shelve further discussion of racial discrimination in South Africa.

Five years ago— World Communist leaders, meeting in Moscow, issues a manifesto which declared that war was not inevitable.

One year ago — British Prime Minister Harold Wilson arrived in Washington for conferences with President Johnson.

Earthquakes are anything but rare; about 50,000 big enough to be felt or noticed without the aid of instruments occur annually over the earth. Of these about 100 produce substantial destruction if they are near inhabited areas. Great earthquakes occur on an average of once every year in some parts of the world. One such struck Tokyo, Japan, in 1923 and killed an estimated 74,000 people.

90th Victim In Ship Disaster

MIAMI, Fla. AP -- Ann Martin (Marty) Jackson, 21, of Vero Beach, Fla., is the 90th victim of the Yarmouth Castle cruise ship disaster.

Miss Jackson, who died Sunday, had been undergoing treatment in the intensive-burn center at Jackson Memorial Hospital.

Soviet Space Capsule Nearing Moon

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet space capsule neared the moon today as scientists waited to see whether it would succeed in making a soft landing.

Luna 8, a 3,421-pound bundle of instruments, rockets and casing, was scheduled to reach an area of the moon's surface called the Ocean of Storms at about 4:50 p.m.

The moon capsule's course was altered Saturday to ensure a landing in this region, the Russians announced.

As Luna 8 approaches the moon, retrorockets are supposed to fire, braking the craft to a gentle descent through the airless lunar atmosphere. This is a tricky maneuver made necessary by the impossibility of using parachutes, which need air to support them.

British Defy Demands Of 36 Nations

LONDON (AP) — The British government today defied demands of 36 African nations to crush Rhodesia's rebellion by mid-December.

In doing so, Prime Minister Harold Wilson and his Cabinet faced the risk of a diplomatic break with member-nations of the Organization of African Unity, which called Friday for quick and forceful British action against Prime Minister Ian Smith's breakaway Rhodesian regime.

Wilson first gave word of Britain's reaction when he told an interviewer he intends to end Rhodesia's rebellion without bloodshed and, if possible, by negotiation.

Then, Commonwealth Relations Secretary Arthur Bottomley reported to Wilson and his ministers on the outcome of his exchanges with President Kenneth Kaunda. The Zambian leader had asked for British military seizure of Kariba Dam and its installations.

Afterward a high government source said:

"President Kaunda's request is quite unacceptable. No agreement is possible, at least for the time being, and no British ground force will be sent to Zambia as things stand now."

FLBA Elects Two Directors

CARUTHERSVILLE--"Farmers use credit as a tool, just as they use improved crops and better machinery," W. E. (Buck) Fletcher, member of the district Farm Credit Board, told those attending the annual meeting of the Federal Land Bank Association.

Fletcher commended the local FLBA for its record of service to farmers through the years and predicted even better service in the future.

Francis Waggoner, manager of the Federal Land Bank Association of Caruthersville, reported that new loans amounted to $1,046,335 during the current year to date.

Elected to three-year terms on the association board of directors were Stanley Greenway of Caruthersville and Gene Clevenger of Senath. Paul Summitt FLBA president, was chairman for the annual meeting.

Entertainment, which followed the dinner served by the Wesleyan Service Guild, was furnished by a choral group from the Caruthersville High School.

The Federal Land Bank Association of Caruthersville is wholly owned by farmers it serves in Dunklin and Pemiscot Counties. In addition to Greenway and Clevenger, directors include: Paul Summitt of Cardwell; Jack H. Tipton of Caruthersville and James O. Taylor of Caruthersville.

Airport Bond Election Dec. 28

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Dec. 28, has been set for an airport bond issue election.

The proposal will be whether to issue $880,000 in general obligation bonds to help finance major improvements to the Municipal airport. It will be identical to the issue that narrowly failed Nov. 23.

The issue received about 65 per cent support last month, short of the needed two-thirds majority.

Then you know it's Quality Chekd®!

We use only top-quality eggs, select domestic and exotic spices, and our own sweet cream. Then we blend them to a split second of smoothness. So when you pour it, it's as thick and rich as though you'd made it yourself.

The Quality Chekd label tells you that our egg nog meets tests beyond regular standards, so it's actually better than egg nog needs to be.

Next time you order egg nog, remember that ours is one of the select dairies authorized to carry the Quality Chekd label. It does make a difference.
